Begin ends visit

Washington (UPI) — Secretary of State Cyrus Vance may follow up Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin's Washington visit by seeking to promote indirect contacts between Israel and Arab nations at the U.N. general assembly, diplomatic sources said Thursday.

The Israeli statesman wound up his final day in Washington by seeking support for his Middle East peace proposals from influential congressmen and AFL-CIO chief George Meany.

Robber not too greedy

Richmond, Va. (AP) — A repentant robber who stole $4,000 from a Richmond bank returned more than half of it Thursday, then called to express his personal apologies.

He didn't say who he was, though. Lee Mumford, a spokesman for the Southern Bank & Trust Co., said employees at one of the bank's branches found the returned money and a note in the night depository. The stickup was pulled Wednesday. The note said the robber didn't feel he ought to keep all the money.

Bodies brought home

Travis Air Force Base, Calif. (UPI) — Bodies of three American soldiers who died last week in a helicopter shot down over North Korea were brought home Thursday from Japan aboard a nonstop Air Force C141 Starlifter.

The three men were: Chief Warrant Officer Joseph A. Miles, 26, of Washington, Ind., the pilot; Sgt. Ronald E. Wells, 22, of El Paso, Tex., crew chief; and Sgt. Robert C. Haynes, 29, of Anniston, Ala., assistant crew chief.

Indian leader disagrees

Augusta, Maine (AP) — The leader of the Penobscot Indian Nation said Thursday he would rather take state and private landowners to court than accept a presidential adviser's solution to a dispute over ownership of 60% of the land in Maine.

Tribal Gov. Nicholas Sapiel said the proposed out-of-court settlement protects "the white man's property but never says anything about the Indians."

Legionnaires remember

Pittsburgh (UPI) — The Pennsylvania American Legion is bestowing its highest award upon Edward Hoak, its state adjutant, for helping to limit the death toll from last year's outbreak of Legionnaires' Disease to 29 persons.

Comics switched

Some readers noticed the crossword puzzle and Cryptquote answers were wrong on Thursday's comic page in The Star, and others thought some of the serial-story comic strips had jumped ahead of their story lines.

Saturday's comic page was printed instead of Thursday's and The Star apologizes. Saturday's page will be repeated again Saturday, causing material to be duplicated but getting everything back into synchronization again.

Carter reassures Soviets

Charleston, S.C. (UPI) — President Carter, cautioning that the United States and the Soviet Union have not yet reached "a basis for complete mutual trust," said Thursday there still is a positive long-range trend in relations between the two super powers.

Carter made the appraisal in a carefully worded speech on the first stop of a two-day swing through South Carolina, Mississippi and Louisiana, telling cheering crowds that "it is really nice to be down South where I belong."

From Charleston Carter flew to Jackson, Miss., to conduct his second "town meeting", this one at Yazoo City, 45 miles away.

Press Secretary Jody Powell said the speech, which is expected to be closely examined in Moscow, was designed to reassure Kremlin leaders the administration is seeking "enhanced cooperation" and intends no threats with its emphasis on human rights.

Carter chose a meeting of the Southern Legislative Conference to give the speech.

He said the trend in U.S.-Soviet relations in the past 30 years "has been positive" despite some setbacks, and his administration is trying "to obtain lasting solutions to East-West differences."

"If this chance to emphasize peace and cooperation instead of animosity and division is allowed to pass, it will not have been our choice," he said.

"We are trying, for the first time, to reach agreements that will not be overturned by the next technological breakthrough," he said. "We are trying, in a word, for genuine accommodation."

The president said his administration has "no delusions about the nature of the world as it really is," and that "the basis for complete mutual trust does not yet exist."

Despite temperatures in the mid 90s, about 2,000 persons gathered along an airport fence to greet Carter upon his arrival in Charleston. Thousands more lined a motorcade route into the city, waving hand-painted signs welcoming him back to his native South.

More than 500 persons jammed Municipal Auditorium to hear the President's talk and he received prolonged applause.

"We have made some progress toward our goals," Carter said. "But, to be frank, we also hear some negative comments from the Soviet side about SALT (The Strategic Arms Limitation Talks) and our more general relations."

"If these comments are based on a misconception of our motives, we will redouble our efforts to make them clear. But if they are merely designed as propaganda to put pressure on us, let no one doubt that we will persevere."

The speech broke no new ground on human rights but Carter made an apparent effort to dispel the distrust and anger Soviet leaders have expressed over his stance on the issue.

"There are no hidden meanings in our commitment to human rights," he said. "Our policy is exactly what it appears to be: the positive and sincere expression of our deepest beliefs as a people. It is addressed not to any particular people or area of the world, but to all countries equally, including our own."

Carter said while his administration's negotiations with Moscow will be guided by "a vision of a gentler, freer more bountiful world" it is well aware of realities.

"The basis for mutual trust does not yet exist," he said.

"Therefore the agreements we reach must be anchored on each side in enlightened self-interest."

Officials said the speech was designed not only to give the Russians a better idea of Carter's philosophy and objectives, but to reassure Western allies who say they are troubled by the negative note America's relations with Moscow have struck.

When he took office, Carter said it was "urgent" to put U.S.-Soviet relations "on a more reciprocal, realistic and ultimately more productive basis."

In his speech Thursday, he said the issue is not whether his policy is "hard" or "soft" but is a question of "a clear-eyed recognition of how most effectively to protect our security and to create the kind of international order I have just described."

"The profound differences in what our two governments believe about freedom and power and the inner lives of human beings are likely to remain, and so are other elements of competition between the United States and the Soviet Union," Carter said.

"That competition is real and deeply rooted in the history and values of our respective societies. But it is also true that our two countries share many important overlapping interests. Our job is to explore those interests and use them to enlarge the areas of cooperation between us."

Carter reviewed his proposals for strategic arms limitation, ending all nuclear tests, banning chemical and biological warfare, curbing nuclear proliferation and the sale of conventional weapons and arms limitation in the Indian Ocean.

He acknowledged the Soviets are worried about American cruise missiles, and "We are concerned about the security of our deterrent."

"But if an agreement cannot be reached, there should be no doubt that the United States can and will do what it must to protect its security and insure the adequacy of its strategic posture," he said.

Carter arranged to stay overnight Thursday in Yazoo City, Miss., at the home of L. Owen Cooper, a friend and a former Baptist leader. On Friday, Carter goes to Zapata Yorktown, a drilling rig 88 miles southeast of New Orleans in the Gulf of Mexico.

Judge delays
Diller decision

By Dean Terrill

Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Diller — A Jefferson County District Court decision on whether to proceed with a recall election on Diller's school board won't be known until Friday morning.

Judge Orville Coady of Hebron, sitting in for vacationing Judge William Rist of Beatrice, said following a 2½ hour hearing Thursday that he was "completely perplexed" as to how to rule. He promised a decision by 9 a.m. Friday after a night of studying legal briefs.

But the unusually candid judge did precede adjournment with a comment that "we'd be better off without recall elections . . . the electorate could straighten out school boards at the end of their terms."

Approximately a dozen witnesses were called, including four of the six board members which are the subject of petitions seeking their ouster. Close to 100 Diller patrons attended the hearing, a side issue of a four-month controversy over the attempted firing of principal Clarence Rost.

The hearing centered on two grounds for removal as set forth in May 9 petitions, accusing the board members of "willful neglect of duty and willful maladministration in office." Board attorney Lyle Koenig argued that the law requires more specific reasons than "these vague phrases that nobody knows the meaning of."

But attorney Richard Wood of Lincoln claimed that the terms, taken directly from statutes, "speak for themselves and are all that the law requires." He is representing Francis Lottman, who brought a writ of mandamus action to force the school board to proceed with the recall election.

Board members J. D. Lofing, Leonard Sasse, Marion Fritzen and Angie Weers all testified that they did not understand the meaning of the two allegations. Koenig also elicited acknowledgement from two petition signers that they didn't fully understand the charges. Both, however, gave brief interpretations.

Among witnesses were Lottman and two other petition carriers, Mrs. Beverly Brown and William Sandman. All three testified that their petitions were read by all signers. Other witnesses were signers Albert Kising, Mrs. Charlene Barnard, Mrs. Alice Mae Edwards and Walter Bartels.

Koenig contended that the only reason for the petitions was because the board had tried to fire Rost.

In a related matter it appears that Rost may be receiving a notice of suspension for the third time.

He is questioning the legality of his current suspension, claiming the board failed to post five days notice prior to the July 13 meeting at which he was suspended.

Koenig claimed the meeting was an emergency session rather than a special meeting, making the five day notice unnecessary. But he said the board probably will set another meeting nonetheless and repeat the suspending procedure.

If Judge Coady decides to order the recall election, it will be Aug. 16. The vote was originally scheduled July 14, but the board refused to proceed on grounds the petitions were vague.

Hitchhiker found guilty of murder

Kimball (AP) — A Kimball County District Court jury Thursday evening found Jerry Simpson, 22, of Cleves, Ohio, guilty of first-degree murder in the shooting death of Fred J. Skiba, 46, of Rancho Cordova, Calif.

The jury of six men and six women deliberated for less than 90 minutes before delivering guilty verdicts on both robbery and murder charges.

Skiba was killed along Interstate 80 just west of Sidney last Nov. 12.

Testimony by investigators detailed how Simpson and his sister, Jacqueline Simpson Brick, 23, shot Skiba during the course of a robbery which they had planned.

Simpson's sister earlier entered a plea of guilty to second-degree murder in Cheyenne County and is awaiting sentencing. The two were hitchhikers picked up by Skiba in Omaha.

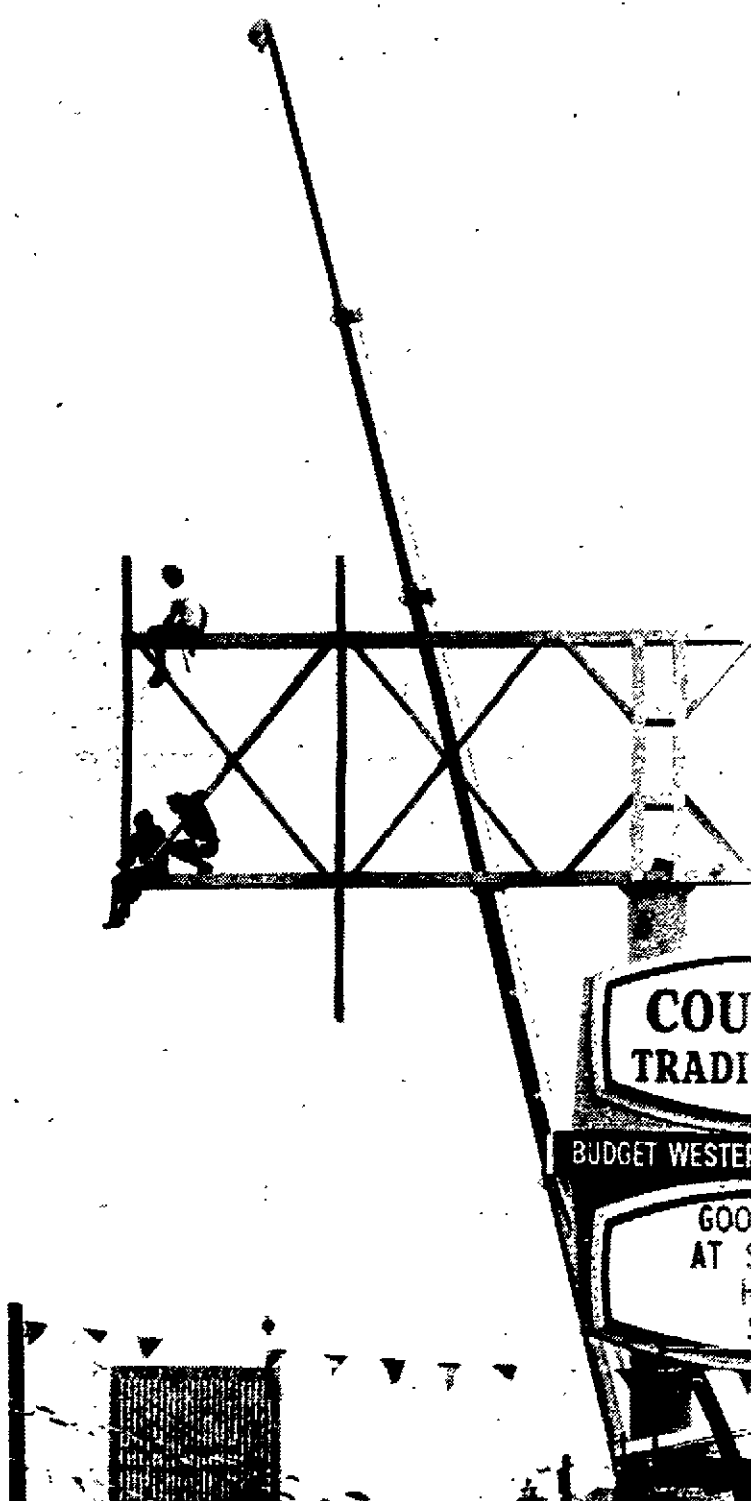

Youth waxes extradition;
is sentenced in robbery

Fort Collins, Colo. (AP) — David Denman, 17, wanted on a murder charge in Nebraska in the slaying of a truck driver, waived extradition when he appeared in court here for sentencing on an armed robbery charge.

Denman was sentenced Thursday to an indefinite term of up to five years in the state reformatory, with the provision that the sentence was to be served concurrently with any sentence he receives in Nebraska.

Denman is wanted by authorities in Keith County, Neb., in connection with the shooting death last January of Walter Standton at a truckstop on Interstate 80.

Two other persons facing charges in Standton's death already have been returned to Nebraska.

Sterilization replacing the pill

New York (AP) — Sterilization of both sexes has become the most prevalent form of birth control by married couples in the United States, researchers said in an analysis released Thursday.

On the basis of a study of 3,403 white women of reproductive age, the Princeton University researchers estimated that 7.9 million couples nationwide rely on sterilization and that 7.1 million use the pill.

"The rapid adoption of this method in the last few years — and especially of the female procedure, which has become technologically simpler — implies that contraceptive and medical sterilization operations probably now comprise the most frequent barrier to conception among all married couples of reproductive age," they said.

Their report was based on an analysis of the 1975 National Fertility Study.

The researchers noted that some sterilization results from operations in which contraception is not the intent.

While sterilization is the most prevalent form of birth control, they added, "The pill predominates among the young and newly married . . . Sterilization, they said, is "increasingly chosen by couples who have had all the children they intend to have."

The 1975 National Fertility Study was conducted by Princeton University professors Charles F. Westoff, who is director of the institution's Office of Population research, and by Norman B. Ryder, faculty research associate in the office. It was funded by the National Institute of Child Health and Human Development.

The analysis, appearing in the current issue of Perspectives magazine, a publication of Planned Parenthood Federation of America, was done by Westoff and by research assistant Elise F. Jones.

Their conclusions were drawn from data gathered in interviews with white women who had been married by age 25. The women had been married continuously to the same man, himself also married only once, for more than five but fewer than 25 years.

The researchers said they had adjusted any biases which may have resulted from the choice of the study group to come up with national estimates.

They concluded that — 43.5 per cent of couples (one or both spouses) who have had all the children they want rely on sterilization, in contrast to 24.1 per cent who use the pill. The sterilization figure was 20 per cent in 1970.

— Half of couples married 10-24 years were surgically sterilized by 1975. Although there has been a slightly higher rate of female sterilization, about the same percentage of men and women have been sterilized.

— Between 1973 and 1975, use of sterilization increased from 37 per cent to 55.7 per cent among women married 20-24 years; from 32 to 51.6 per cent for those married 15-19 years; 30.4 to 43.3 per cent in marriages of 10-14 years, and 18 to 22 per cent in marriages of 5-9 years. In the last category, the figure was 8 per cent in 1970.

— The number of women using contraception has increased 11.4 per cent to 79 per cent since 1970 and three-quarters of those couples elected the most effective methods — sterilization, the pill or the intrauterine device.

— Use of the pill has apparently stabilized at 34.3 per cent in 1975, compared with 35.4 per cent in 1970. Only among women married fewer than 10 years is the pill the most popular contraceptive.

— Reliance on such measures as the IUD, the diaphragm, the condom, withdrawal, foam, rhythm and douche has declined.

"While relief from the necessity for continuous practice of contraception is surely one motive for sterilization, its increasing popularity also implies that couples are more willing to accept irreversibility of the decision to terminate childbearing," the published report said.

Federal red tape worst snarl, local officials say

(c) Newhouse News Service
Washington — Cities and counties say that red tape is the biggest problem they have in running projects financed by categorical grants from the federal government.
The red tape and other major problems, they say, have worsened during a five-year period.
City and county officials expressed these views in surveys sponsored by a federal watchdog, the Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations. Congress set up the group in 1959 to study federal relations with state and local governments.
It polled federal, state, city and county officials about categorical grants — the federal or state funds that go to lesser jurisdictions for specific categories of activities such as housing, public works or training and employment of the jobless. In effect the survey asked, how are things going?
City and county officials agreed that their worst problem was the complexity and volume of the paperwork they were required to do to obtain grants and then report on how they spent the money.

They also agreed:
— Their worsening problems included delay in receiving grants, the difficulty of obtaining policy interpretations from federal or state officials, lack of consultation with federal or state officials in developing regulations, and the sheer complexity of everything.
— The biggest problem with state funds was uncertainty about when and in what amounts they would receive the money.
— Federal and state grants have a stimulative and lasting effect on the decisions of local officials to carry out the suggested projects or programs. The trouble, they say, is not the programs as designed by Congress, but in their implementation.
— Eighty per cent of state administrators want all federal contacts with cities and counties to be channeled through the states.
Among federal administrators, 11% saw a need for "substantial" improvement in their programs, 29% saw room for "moderate" improvement, and 60% thought "things were about as good as they could be."

Flood death toll reaches 46, some residents fear looting

Johnstown, Pa. (AP) — The death toll from Johnstown's third major flood in less than 90 years reached at least 46 Thursday as repair and cleanup crews made their way through thick mud and debris in the flood-scarred valleys.
In addition to the fatalities confirmed by state police, an estimated 50,000 persons were still displaced from their homes after rain-choked streams became rampaging torrents Wednesday along a 70-mile stretch of the Conemaugh River valley.
Officials felt that the death toll would rise as the cleanup efforts continued. "We're expecting more bodies. We're sure of it," said Arthur Keiper, chief deputy coroner of Cambria County.
Meanwhile, residents of two outlying communities reportedly had armed themselves to guard their homes and businesses from looters. While the National Guard was patrolling the streets of Johnstown itself, the guardsmen reportedly could not get to the two towns.
A makeshift army of repair and mud removal crews entered Johnstown on Thursday, but their efforts were hampered as a severe late afternoon thunderstorm battered the city.
Wind gusts of up to 65 miles an hour swirled dust from dried-up mud into the air, limiting visibility to about 100 yards.
"The additional rain also caused a rise of six to 12 inches of water in the streets in downtown," said Paul White of the western area Civil Defense.

Dr. George Kattner of nearby Woodville told Gov. Milton Shapp during a tour of the city: "These people need to be reassured. They've got nothing. No water, no gas. Please reassure them. They're going to shoot somebody pretty goddamn soon."
Residents of West Taylor Township were also reported heavily armed with pistols and rifles as they awaited help.
"We can't even get the National Guard in here," said chief of police Orrie Satterfield. "People are looting. We can't get any help."
President Carter declared seven flood-damaged western Pennsylvania counties a major disaster area, making them eligible for federal aid.
U.S. Rep. John Murtha, D-Pa., who met with Gov. Milton Shapp and federal officials Thursday, estimated the damage at $100 million.
Johnstown, a shattered city of 41,000, looked like a war zone. The town became a synonym for disaster after 2,200 people died in an 1889 flood. Another flood in 1936 killed 20 people.
Many residents who were evacuated during the latest flooding went home Thursday to survey the damage and then return to emergency housing. They waded through slimy puddles past heaps of broken furniture, hundreds of up-ended cars and other debris tossed around by the water, which reached eight feet deep in some sections of town.

Under fire, Cubans take Florida lobster boat

Miami (UPI) — A Florida lobster boat skipper sent a Cuban boarding officer overboard Thursday and tried to flee with two Cuban gunboats firing rockets over his ship until the U.S. Coast Guard advised him by radio to surrender.
The last word from Nick Denicholas, skipper of the 72-foot fishing vessel Bounty, was "they've taken my radio." The Cubans apparently took over the Bounty about 30 miles north of the Cuban port of Cayo Jutias.
A 210-foot Coast Guard cutter, the Steadfast, was ordered to help the bounty, but was too far away — 150 miles — when the Cubans seized her.
The Coast Guard said it did not know if the Bounty was being taken to Havana or some other port.
Besides Denicholas, there was a woman cook — identified as Sheila Armquest — aboard the Bounty, returning to Key West from a trip to Nicaragua and Honduras waters with a stop at Grand Cayman Island.

The incident was regarded as the most serious in a growing series of seizures of U.S. vessels in international waters by the Cubans in recent weeks.
Rear Adm. Robert Durfey, commander of the 7th Coast Guard District, said, "I consider it quite serious, particularly in view of the previous number of ships seized over the past month or so."
The Cubans claim a 12-mile offshore territorial jurisdiction — a claim which the United States does not recognize.
Durfey said a notice has gone out to all U.S. mariners to beware of Cuban waters and to stay as far away as possible.
A tape of all conversation with the Bounty was made by the Coast Guard and played later for newsmen.

In his first radio call to the Coast Guard, Denicholas told the Coast Guard "A Cuban gunboat came alongside and asked me to slow down. One officer jumped on board and ordered me to shut down. But I gave my engines full speed."
"We had a slight struggle and he jumped overboard," Durfey told newsmen the Coast Guard was unsure whether the Cuban boarding officer was "pushed, shoved or jumped overboard."
After the officer was picked up by his gunboat it fired shots over the Bounty and turned away briefly, then resumed the pursuit. The Coast Guard advised Bounty to keep "heading north until the Cubans overtake you."
A little more than an hour later Denicholas radioed: "A second PT boat just pulled up . . . they're firing some kind of shells, some kind of rockets over us now. . . ."

The staccato sound of gunfire was clearly audible on the Coast Guard tape.
"I'm being fired on by Cuban gunboats," Denicholas continued.
"I'm refusing to stop. I don't care if they shoot, I refuse to stop!" he shouted.
More gunfire came in over the radio and the skipper said, by way of explanation, "that's them, that's them — they're firing over the Bounty."
At this point the Coast Guard told him:
"It's going to be your decision but we highly recommend that you stop . . . for your own safety, we would recommend you stopping."
"Roger, Roger," replied Denicholas. "I'm stopping."
As Cuban rockets and bullets were zooming over his ship Denicholas was reprimanded on the radio by a man believed to be his boss for not surrendering to the first Cuban gunboat 15 miles north of Cayo Jutias.

"You should have stopped the first time," the voice, identified by the Coast Guard as that of Raymond C. Vanyo of Tampa, the Bounty's owner, told Denicholas.
"I tried but nobody speaks English," replied the skipper. "Why don't you use your head for something other than a hat rack?" said the voice, speaking from a radio in Key West, according to the Coast Guard.
"The first mistake you made was not stopping the first time. Let the State Department handle it. It's not worth a life . . ."
The Coast Guard said since last July 1 four other U.S. vessels — all pleasure sailing craft — have been seized and their crew interrogated in Cuba on charges of violating Cuban waters.

Ozark tries to avert shut-down

St. Louis (UPI) — Representatives of Ozark Air Lines and the Mechanics' Union Thursday held negotiations on a new contract to replace one that expired last Oct. 1 and head off a possible strike.
Members of Aircraft Mechanics Fraternal Association Local 24 were voting on whether to authorize a strike July 30, the end of a 30-day cooling off period. Results of the vote were expected Saturday.
A company statement said Ozark was optimistic a contract agreement could be reached without interruption of service. Paul Rogers, vice president for marketing, said a strike would shut down operations.
Ozark serves 57 cities in 16 states, mostly in the Midwest. The last strike by mechanics halted Ozark's operations for 11 weeks in 1973.
Bargaining on a new contract began June 13, 1976. The union said after a year of talks, negotiations are at an impasse.

Rogers said the mechanics may legally strike after July 30, but said, "negotiations are still in progress with both representatives of the National Mediation Board and representatives of the negotiation committee of AMFA and the company negotiating team."

Egypt, Libya blame each other in border clash

Cairo, Egypt (AP) — Libyan forces invaded western Egypt with tanks and planes Thursday but were repelled in a major desert battle near the border village of Salum, Egypt reported. Libya called the report a "lie" and said Egypt was the invader. "The Egyptian force was able to destroy 40 tanks and 30 Libyan army trucks, to take 12 military prisoners from the 9th Libyan armored division as well as 30 saboteurs," Cairo radio said. It said the Egyptian air force shot down two Libyan planes. Egypt said no Egyptian soldiers were killed, but several were wounded and one truck was lost. Libya claimed Egyptian forces had crossed into its territory and Egyptian planes had bombed a village. An Egyptian military spokesman said, "There has been fighting but we have not declared war." The battle followed a series of incidents along the border between the two North African Arab nations, which once talked of union but have become increasingly hostile since a bitter policy disagreement at the time of the 1973 Middle East war. Reporters were not allowed into the area, which the Egyptian government declared a restricted military sector. Salum is on the Mediterranean coast some 350 miles west of Cairo and about a mile from the Libyan border. Libya accused Egypt of moving troops across the border near the Libyan town of Musaid, about five miles west of Salum. Libya said its forces "are continuing to expel the aggressors from Musaid." Libya, in a broadcast from Tripoli, said Egyptian forces bombed the village of al-Marjah "including all its civilian installations, aiming to kill women, the aged and children." The official Libyan statement accused Egypt of "direct aggression" and said the Libyan people intend to defend their land "and the sanctity of their soil." The broadcast called the Egyptian account "a baseless lie and completely false," saying "its purpose was to mislead innocent Egyptian officers and men and also to mislead the Egyptian people and to distract them from the serious internal problems they are experiencing." Efforts were under way in Cairo to convene an emergency meeting of the Arab League to resolve the conflict. Reports indicated Mahmoud Riad, the league's secretary general, was in urgent consultations with the member states trying to convene a meeting at the foreign minister level. Riad issued a statement deploring the "terrible incidents along the border" and urging the sides not to escalate the conflict. Cairo radio said, "A force of Libyan armored cars supported by artillery opened fire on the Egyptian military post at Salum, forcing Egyptian troops to confront the aggressor and chase them back west of the village of Musaid (on the Libyan side of the border)." Libyan planes tried to raid our posts. Egyptian air defenses downed two planes. With the entrance of the Libyan air force, it was inevitable the Egyptian air force also should become engaged to protect the Egyptian ground forces. Cairo radio said. The radio did not say how long the battle lasted. The reported clash between the two Arab nations was the fourth border incident in a month between oil-rich Libya and economically troubled Egypt. The two once planned to unite and form one nation. An Egyptian military communique said Egypt's counterattack was "in retaliation for Libyan aggression and intended to secure Egypt's western border." The most serious of the previous clashes took place two days ago and led to the destruction of 20 Libyan military vehicles and their crews and left nine Egyptians dead, Cairo radio said. Egypt accused Libya on Wednesday of seeking to overthrow President Anwar Sadat by engaging in a "large-scale terrorist plot" with Moslem fanatics who earlier this month kidnapped and killed Sheik Mohammed Zahabi, former religious affairs minister in the Egyptian cabinet. Egypt and Libya announced plans to form a union in August 1972 but the merger plans soon fell through with Libyan leader Moammar Khadafi accusing Egypt of adopting corrupt Western ways opposed to the teachings of Islam.

Figures show well-balanced economy

Washington (UPI) — The nation's economy was "strong and well-balanced" during the second quarter, growing at a 6.4% annual rate, the Commerce Department said Thursday. In a separate report, the Labor Department said the prices consumers pay at the grocery store and other retail outlets rose a "moderate" 0.6%, matching the lowest increases of the year in May and March. The two government economic reports confirmed administration projections that the economic growth rate was healthy during the first half of 1977 and inflation — as measured by the Consumer Price Index — has slowed somewhat after increasing at a 10% annual rate during the first three months of 1977. Economic growth in the second quarter was strong and well-balanced," said Countenay Slater, chief economist for the Commerce Department. Unlike the first quarter, when the GNP rise was heavily concentrated in motor vehicle purchases and business inventories, second quarter growth was spread among almost all major GNP components. The department said the GNP stood at $133 trillion, compared to $131 trillion in the first quarter. Mrs. Slater said residential construction showed a particularly strong increase in the second quarter and government purchases showed "significant gains" for the first time since mid-1975. Although the 6.4% growth was considered healthy, it fell below projections by administration economic officials who forecast an increase in the range of 7%. Of the consumer price measurement released by the Labor Department, Mrs. Slater said "it looks very much as if the trend toward moderation in consumer prices that we expected has begun." She said, for example, that drops in farm prices at the wholesale level still have not surfaced for consumers. The Consumer Price Index measures average changes in prices of goods and services for an urban family. It stood at 181.8 in June from the 1967 base of 100 — meaning consumers needed $181.80 to buy goods worth $100 a decade ago. Food prices continued their upward movement in June, rising by 0.8% compared with a 0.7% increase in May. But they were considerably below the 2% and 1.5% increases recorded in February and April. Much of the food price gain resulted from processed foods such as dairy products, canned and frozen fruits and vegetables, sugar and sweets, cereal and bakery products.

U.S. Steel price hike upsets White House

Washington (AP) — U.S. Steel Corp. announced a price increase on Thursday and was immediately criticized for it by the Carter administration, which said the price action is "clearly inconsistent with efforts to control the inflation rate." Charles L. Schultze, chairman of President Carter's Council of Economic Advisers, called reporters to his office after U.S. Steel announced price increases of 6% on structural steel and 7% on tin mill steel, effective Sept. 4. The company blamed the increase on a rise in employment costs on Aug. 1 and other cost increases. U.S. Steel said that according to the weighting given structural and tin mill products by the U.S. Dept. of Labor Statistics, the impact of the increases on the Wholesale Price Index will be about three-hundredths of 1%. Schultze said he had discussed U.S. Steel's price hikes with Carter who expressed his sharp disappointment with this development. If other steelmakers follow U.S. Steel's lead, Schultze said, all steel products will be an average of 12.5% above the prices of last September. He said this latest increase is the fifth significant price hike in the steel industry in 10 months.

Beef promotion vote: majority is not enough

A clear majority of those cattlemen voting favored establishing a beef research and development fund, it appeared Thursday — but it was not enough.

The American National Cattlemen's Association was estimating that 55% of those voting cast ballots approving the beef checkoff which was seen by supporters as a program needed to create greater demand for a product now losing money and to counteract the dissemination of what is regarded as false information about beef.

But the federal law setting up the program and the referendum mandated that two-thirds of those voting approve the check-off. The two thirds requirement sticks in the craw of many supporters who regard it as prime evidence of consumer advocate efforts to scuttle the program.

But the opposition of some consumer advocates who feel that an ambitious research and marketing program will raise the retail price of beef, is only one of a complex of factors which led to the apparently insufficient vote this month.

In Nebraska the beef referendum was only some 300 votes shy of obtaining two thirds approval. A better job of selling the program was done here than in many of the states where it didn't carry.

An analysis of the vote which might prove premature shows that:

—Ranchers who produce only one crop — cattle — were generally in support of the check off which would raise $30 million to $40 million annually from cattle sales for research promotion and program expenses.

—Feeder farmers who might argue they have other outlets for their products tended to vote no.

—The referendum was unfortunately scheduled at a time — July 5-15 — when there was much field work to do. Supporters suggested there would have been a better chance of reaching the undecided cattlemen through meetings and debates had the referendum been scheduled in the winter.

—States in which the referendum passed most likely have had experience with other commodity promotion programs which have worked. California is a good example. One Nebraska source commented that cattlemen in California, where the referendum passed by 87%, "know what it can do," and used as an example a milk program which turned around a declining market.

—Lack of unity in writing the law setting up the program worked against its ultimate success.

—Opposition by some farm groups — local and national — was instrumental in preventing a two-thirds vote in favor, and it showed the divided nature of American agriculture.

—The independent nature of many cattlemen was obvious. Many had reservations about somebody else collecting their money and handling it and, according to referendum supporters, scare tactics and code words — such as "tax" and "government intervention" had an effect on such people.

If the trend holds up and the referendum does indeed fail, there is likely to be bitterness within the industry directed at both organizational opponents and the consumer movement. Failure of the referendum will bring on added pessimism among producers who already feel they are losing ground. Said one Nebraska cattleman, a supporter of the beef check-off program: "I don't like doing things poorly, and we're not doing a very good job" of selling beef.

In our opinion, the research and promotion program would have been a welcome shot in the arm for a besieged industry giving it a forum to counteract, as best it could, nutritional claims militating against beef sales, other switches in dietary trends, and consumer whims.

A majority of cattlemen thought so too but it was not enough, apparently.

The beef referendum did offer a window on all American agriculture, although the focus was on beef producers. What one could see from the window is an industry comprised of independent parts divided rather than unified, susceptible to misinformation and one hardly capable of effective action in its own behalf.

But what's new?

Rickover, big man in a small boat

New York — He's 77 now. His stride is brisk because he wills it to be. The pale face is perpetually angry. The brown eyes conceal pain. Hyman Rickover is the only man ever to have defeated his own Navy, and then rebuilt it. In the last year of World War I, the son of Abraham and Rose Rickover became a cadet in the Naval Academy at Annapolis. He was Jewish. He had floppy ears and a ramrod spine. He sought few as friends, and fewer sought him.

He drew his bachelor of science degree in 1922 and dutifully tossed his white cap in the air with other U.S. Navy ensigns. The Navy had no official position on Jewish officers. Unofficially, they were an embarrassment.

When he asked for an appointment to post-graduate work at Columbia University, the Navy was glad to grant it. Rickover wanted a master's degree in electrical engineering. They would "lose" him for seven years. Most important, it would keep his sea-going experience to a minimum.

Promotions come from decks, not desks. In 1929, he asked for submarine duty aboard the old S-boats. He breathed the diesel fumes of the S-9, the S-48. On rotation, they put him aboard the old battleships Nevada and New Mexico.

Rickover had a problem. He didn't know when to quit. In peacetime, promotion is slow, in his case getting a second stripe required ages. He was dumped into the navy yard at Cavite in the Philippines. As World War II started, they made Charles Lockwood admiral in charge of submarines in the Pacific and assigned Hyman Rickover to the Bureau of Ships at the Pentagon.

He had a giant intellect and enormous vision, but the Navy was certain that there had never been a Jewish admiral and there wasn't going to be. Several of his Annapolis classmates had two-star rank. The Navy made him "inspector general of the 19th Fleet" as the war ended. He was 45, going nowhere. The collision course between the Navy and Rickover was obvious, though nobody would acknowledge it.

The Americans had exploded an atom bomb. Rickover's background in engineering told him that this massive energy could be tamed. He asked for a transfer to Oak Ridge, Tennessee. It was far from the sea, but there scientists began work on atomic energy.

Rickover could see huge submarines which could remain underwater for two months. He could also see huge attack carriers which could roam the seven seas without refueling. As the missile program developed, he wondered if they could be sent flying into the skies from underwater.

The Navy promoted him to rear admiral. He had beaten them soundly. "Their" Navy was scrapped. Rickover's began to build. In 1952, he gave a little of his time to interview a young officer who had asked for submarine duty.

His name was Jimmy Carter, Jr. The admiral asked Carter for his youthful notions about the future of the U.S. Navy. He listened, nodded, and said rhetorically, "Why not the best?"

Rickover was a dedicated perfectionist. A sundowner. He sent Carter to Pearl Harbor to work in old sea boats. While other officers played during shore leave, Carter was deep in the study books. He kept thinking of that question, "Why not the best?" Why not the best in every phase of life — if it can be achieved?

The old admiral constructed the first atomic submarine, USS Nautilus. He pressed on, designing atomic reactors. Carter's father died and he resigned his naval commission. He had to oversee a peanut farm.

Rickover got his third star. Then his fourth. That was the final step. He retired. But the Navy now hungered for him. He was placed on active-inactive duty so that he could continue to develop the Nimitz class carriers and Polaris submarines.

Five years ago, his wife Ruth died. At the age of 74, Admiral Rickover married Eleanor Bednowicz. Last year his lost submariner ran for president of the United States. The admiral remained silent.

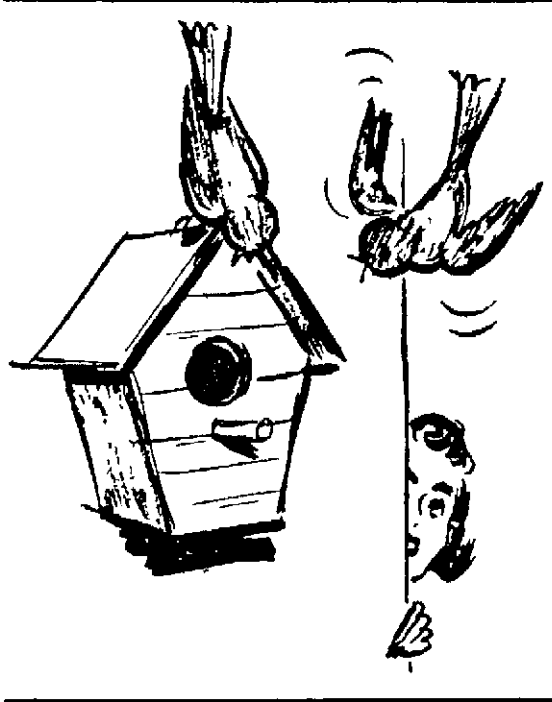

Carter won. And wrote a little book called, "Why Not the Best?" He invited his old boss to lunch at the White House. At the age of 77, Rickover acknowledged that the one-time boy lieutenant was now his commander-in-chief.

The President said that Rickover "has had a profound effect on my life, perhaps more than anyone else except my own parents." The admiral is no smiler. He placed a plaque on Carter's desk. It states: "O, God, Thy Sea is so Great and My Boat is so Small."

On removing wasps from a wren house

By LaVerna Hassler
Star Feature Writer

One of the two wren houses The Farmer made the past spring now has taken the eye of a pair of wrens. Though they will be negligent about rent, they will pay in kind with their song. They begin early in the morning singing and sing until the heat of the day drives them to silence. When the shadows of late afternoon begin to lengthen, they find renewed energy and sing their hearts out until darkness overtakes them.

We had given up the idea of having wrens nest this season but I understand from native bird-watchers it is quite common. The young from broods of early spring will nest this time of year. Often times if a mate has been killed by a cat or a thoughtless child's BB gun the other wren will seek another mate and nest again later in the season.

We spied the activity two weeks ago when the wrens began flitting in and out of the wren house. One morning they were darting through the morning glory vines on the wall of the patio. I could see them from my kitchen window as I washed the dishes. Now they have settled down to the nitty-gritty task of bringing sticks to the wren house. We can see several sticks in the door of the house. They will have to do a bit of re-arranging to get them farther into the house.

The Farmer noticed wasps flying into the other wren house. So far neither of us is brave enough to look inside. I have outlined a strategy of attack. It includes gingerly approaching the opening of the wren house and directing a spray of bug killer into the house. The Farmer thinks this would leave an odorless residue in the house that would hinder the chances of another pair of wrens nesting in the house. Since they seem to be the common dirt-dauber wasps, we will wait until the eggs have sealed in the mud cones and the wasps leave. They we can take the house down and remove the dried mud cone. The end of this week should find those tenants on their way out of this new housing district.

What a welcome lull from the heat wave we had in our area following the recent rain of well over an inch. The return to humid days is just what the corn and milo need to conserve the moisture that did fall, although I will admit the high humidity is not to the liking of people.

The hottest days of July cannot deter the tiger lilies from blooming. In fact, it seems they prefer the hot, sun-filled days to display their bright orange flowers. The zinnias, too, stand through the heat of the day proclaiming all the good things about the good old summertime.

The cucumbers nearby do not fare so well. By mid-afternoon their big leaves droop and by nightfall they look as if they have given up the fight. In fact, I look at them and think how well they express my woe-begone feelings at the end of the day.

However, overnight they seem to get their vigor back and are ready for another day. They are producing some nice cucumbers but the flowers seem to wilt with the hot days so I surmise we will not have many from now unless the weather cools somewhat.

The Farmer has disked the stubble ground after the delay of having to fix the starter on the tractor. He disked the new pasture ground that he broke up early this spring once more and right at the moment he is watching the milo grow. So far the rains have come at the opportune time for the dry-land farmers in our area and all the crops look green and vigorous.

For those farmers who irrigate, their days are long and hard, walking the fields to check the rows and moving pipe. Those with sprinkler systems have less work involved, yet they, too, must check the fields.

All in all, it seems when a nice rain falls, every farmer takes a deep breath whether he be a dry-land farmer or one who irrigates his fields. It gives them a short respite in the long days of summer.

Lincoln leads the list

Lincoln's place as a very special city is well established in the hearts of its residents. Nobody needed to tell Lincolnites that it is a desirable place to live. We may moan about the weather or housing costs or wish for a few more cultural or recreational opportunities, but disadvantages are more than matched by advantages.

A University of Nebraska-Omaha survey showing Lincoln to be the most desirable of 100 American cities listed many of those advantages for all to see.

Not surprisingly, the project director has been overwhelmed with calls from people wanting to know about their own cities — and more about Lincoln and Omaha, which rated fourth.

The attention is flattering, even while many of us hope it goes away. They've blown our cover — seems to be the opinion of a majority of people we've talked to. Indeed, a seemingly sleepy, moderate-sized midwestern capital city has been exposed as leading the list in attractiveness based on standards applied to all.

Lincoln residents should savor the recognition and what it reflects of them, hope the attention is fleeting and remember that fate and the lack of problems not of their own making which face other cities have had much to do with the quality of life here.

Carter's broken Lance

William Safire

Washington — Jimmy Carter is trying to sell the Senate a dubious bill of goods about his intimate friend, the Office of Management and Budget director, Bert Lance.

The Georgia banker should be excused from conflict of interest divestiture promises. The President has asserted because his promise to sell his stock has depressed its market value.

That is a deception. The reason that National Bank of Georgia stock has slid from 16 to 11 this year has little to do with the overhang. The stock has dropped because of the revelation that Lance tolerated bad loans on his books. The man who inherited the mess has had to write off the bad loans and cut out dividend payments.

The truth is that Lance's departure for Washington did not cause his financial embarrassment. On the contrary, we now see how his willingness to carry questionable loans as assets may have artificially maintained the price of his stock.

Carter's intimate is familiar with Lance's books. On June 19, 1976, only a few weeks before the $2.7 million to finance the President's stock, Bert Lance brought Lance's assets to the Manufacturers Hanover Bank. The bank's president, Lea Jenkins, the bank's vice president, Bruce Broughm, and the bank's treasurer, John H. Smith, all insist Lance's books are sound. The former Georgia banker is trying to salvage his reputation as a banker.

Banking is a game, and who was Governor Carter's high commissioner also claims to have had no role in the infusion of the Teamsters' Central States pension fund into the President's books. At the time, the Lance bank, three percent interest department had no access to the State's money, for no apparent reason. The politically sensitive John H. Smith, Jr., turned into the Lance bank that had grown to $24 million.

At the time, says the modest Lance, "I was a banker, I was the modest Lance."

In the last few months, six months ago, I was in Atlanta, I had cause to worry about the financial health of the bank. He turned to the other members of the bank, J. Robert Smith, Jr., the president of the First National Bank of Atlanta, and the regular of his men, the vice president, Richard Smith, as the bank's treasurer.

By Roger Simon
Chicago Sun-Times writer

Chicago — A 30-pound halibut was cut up in a storefront window in Chicago's loop yesterday in front of a crowd of about 100 persons. There were no arrests.

The day had begun like any other. The clouds looked like last week's mashed potatoes and the wind blew the city's monoxide breath into my face. I turned up my trench coat collar, fired up a cigarette and called the office. "Whatcha got sweetheart?" I asked.

The Head Fish Butcher of the Palmer House Hotel will cut up a 30-pound halibut at noon. The office told me: "We need an experienced man on this one."

It sounded like malarky, but I needed the work. I pulled a pencil stub out from behind my ear. "Name?" I asked.

"Of the Fish Butcher or the fish?"

Cute. Real cute.

I hailed a hack and made my way down State Street. It was my kind of street: a Chicago combination of Fifth Avenue, the Champs Elysees and the Ginza. This was People Week, a week of stunts to get people to come out and spend their money. Keep Chicago green.

I eyeballed the press release. The Nerveless Nocks, a circus act, were going to hang from 50-foot poles. John W. Matson was going to play a trumpet with one hand and an accordion with the other. Someone was going to dress up like a Polish sausage.

And some guy was going to butcher a fish. That guy was mine. All mine.

In front of the Palmer House, outside the window of Japan Air Lines, a crowd was gawking like there had been a car wreck. In the window was Julio Navarro, Head Fish Butcher of the hotel. He had a tall, white hat, a double-breasted, white apron and a wicked looking knife. He was standing in the middle of a lot of dead fish.

I elbowed my way through the crowd and pushed into the airline office. It smelled like Jonah's tennis sneakers after three days in the whale. I was greeted by George L. Harrington III, executive assistant manager of the hotel.

"Smells like fish," he said. "He had me there."

I was then introduced to Martin Leal, executive sous chef. Since Head Fish Butcher Navarro spoke little English, Leal would narrate each slice to the crowd outside over a microphone.

I asked Leal where they got the fish. "In the ocean," he said.

I could tell I was dealing with some tough cookies. Navarro began sharpening up a blade that would have made Jack the Ripper squeal with joy. He picked up a 30-pound halibut by the tail. It was gray and wet and about the size of a collier.

He slapped it down on the table and made a slice like Dr. Christian Barnard going after a bum tucker. He has cut the fish! Leal yelled into the microphone.

Navarro sliced off the skin in one, smooth motion.

"Here comes the skin!" Leal yelled again.

Navarro began slicing with little wrist-twists and cutting with lightning chops. I had stumbled on the Nureyev of the Knife.

If this gets any more exciting, I don't think I can stand it," George L. Harrington III whispered to me.

In a few minutes, Navarro had finished. A mother held her child up above the crowd to get a look. All that was left was a pile of little fish slices.

"Sashimi," Leal said. "Gesundheit," I said. "Sashimi, sashimi," he said. "That's Japanese for raw fish," George L. Harrington III said.

Navarro held up the scrawny skeleton for the crowd to see.

"That was once a fish," Leal said into the microphone.

The fish butchers are a dying breed," George L. Harrington III told me.

Just smells that way," I muttered. After the demonstration was over, Navarro granted me an interview with Leal assisting. I asked Navarro how long he had been a fish butcher. He answered for about five minutes in Spanish.

"A long time," Leal translated.

"I asked him if hacking apart a fish was tougher than hacking apart a chicken. Leal didn't even bother to translate the question.

"A chicken ain't that hard," he said, "Heck, I can do a chicken."

I saved my lalapalooza line for last. "You like to eat fish?" I asked Navarro.

Navarro made a face, squinched up his nose and shook his head violently back and forth.

Not a great deal," Leal translated. I shook hands (a big mistake) and went out onto State Street. The Nerveless Nocks were hanging by their feet from 50-foot poles. Johnny Matson was playing an accordion and blowing through a trumpet.

For my next number," he announced, "I will play 'If You Want Sweet Milk In The Summer, Leave It In The Cow'."

It was going to be that kind of day.

Back to blueprint for beef referendum

By Dominick Costello
Farm Editor

Wray Finney, president of the American National Cattlemen's Association, expressed "extreme disappointment" about the outcome of the beef referendum vote in a telephone interview Thursday from his Denver office.

"We are heartened that a majority of those who voted did vote yes. That indicates they did see a need for a program," he said.

Finney stated the upcoming merger between the American National Cattlemen's Association and the National Livestock Feeders Association would probably delay any new efforts by the cattle groups to establish a checkoff program.

"The new National Cattlemen's Association, which will be formed in September, is even more important now. I think the major effort will be made in getting that off the ground," he said.

Finney said it was possible the cattle groups would try again to pass a referendum. "We could do that under the existing law, but we do have to get a new order from the U.S. Department of Agriculture," he said.

Finney said he didn't know if cattlemen might consider a lawsuit demanding that the 55% favorable vote be construed as adequate to establish the program under a one-man, one-vote judicial decision.

"It is just too early to make any decision. A move made in haste could be a thoughtless thing to do. We need to carefully analyze what happened first," he said.

Finney said there were some good things that came out of the effort even if it did fail to get the referendum approved.

Thus was the first time we ever got that many cattle organizations to work together on a single project. We had hundreds of men and women working long hours without pay for the industry. That has to be a plus," he said.

Finney said consumer groups didn't play a role in the referendum defeat. "It was the requirement that a two-thirds approval be made and the fact that there was so much bad information about the program. There were half-truths and outright untruths spread by opponents that caused a lot of confusion," he said.

Finney said many people expected the cattle organizations to find an instant solution to cattlemen's problems. "That just isn't going to happen," he said.

"This would have been a long-term program of research on marketing problems and a promotion effort both overseas and domestic that could have made a real difference in cattlemen's income," he said.

To be approved, the proposal needed to win 66% approval, however results from key states indicated the checkoff program would win only about 55% support.

Following is a list of the states involved in the referendum and the percentage of approval, based on reports from state Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service offices, assembled by the National Beef Development Task Force.

Official results should be available from the U.S. Department of Agriculture Friday.

Steinmark drug trial given to jury

Lexington (UPI) — Donald Steinmark's second trial on charges he sold former Nebraska State Patrol informant Dennis Landrie amphetamines and marijuana in December, 1974, was turned over Thursday to a jury of nine women and three men.

The jury, which received the case at noon, deliberated until 5 p.m. without reaching a verdict. Deliberations were to resume at 9 a.m. Friday.

Testimony, closing arguments and final instructions to the jury were completed during the trial's morning session Thursday. The prosecution told the jury the verdict depends on "whether you believe Landrie or Steinmark."

Steinmark, 40, Kearney, who wept during his attorney's closing argument to the jury, has denied he ever sold drugs to Landrie, a three-time convicted felon.

In 1975 Steinmark was convicted by District Court Judge Donald Weaver on Landrie's uncorroborated testimony and sentenced by Weaver to a total of six to 18 years.

However, U.S. District Court Judge Albert Schatz said in March, 1977, that Weaver should have allowed Steinmark's attorney to cross-examine Landrie about the informant's past criminal record.

Steinmark spent nearly one year in prison before he was released following Schatz' ruling, which also ordered the state either to retry Steinmark or let him go. The second trial was moved from Kearney to Lexington on a change of venue.

Throughout the trial, Steinmark's attorney, Kirk Naylor, Lincoln, attempted to raise questions about Landrie's credibility. In his final argument, Naylor detailed apparent discrepancies in Landrie's testimony and cited mistakes Landrie had made while working for the patrol on at least one other case involving a Kearney man and on a third drug count against Steinmark.

Bruce Bamford, 22, was charged in December, 1974, with selling Landrie drugs, but he was acquitted because he could prove he was either in Colorado or in his home at the time he allegedly sold Landrie the drugs. A third drug count against Steinmark was dismissed in 1975 because Steinmark was either playing cards with friends or working as a bartender at Jessie's Bar in Kearney.

Landrie had said Steinmark sold him drugs at a Kearney trailer court.

Prosecutor Gary Hogg, Buffalo County attorney, said in his closing argument that Landrie was one stranger against the drug community in Kearney and that the drug community had united against Landrie.

He said Landrie had been in a one-on-one situation with Steinmark at the time Steinmark allegedly sold the amphetamines and marijuana at Jessie's Bar. He said Landrie was not carrying a concealed recording device and was not observed by anyone.

Grand Island youth becomes double champ at horse show

Grand Island — Dale Rice, 13, of Chapman, was a double champion during the Nebraska 4-H Horse Exposition in session here this week.

The Chapman youth walked off with top honors in both the junior boys western pleasure division and junior western horsemanship.

Reserve champion in the junior boys western pleasure was Rob Strong, 13, of Kearney, while Rourke Erickson, 12, of Harvard, was the reserve champ in the junior boys horsemanship.

John Coats, 14, of Juniata, was champion in the senior boys western horsemanship with Randy Kobler, 14, of Lincoln, reserve champ.

Champion in the senior girls western pleasure division was Carol Bressman, 18, of Omaha, with Lori Hughett, 14, of Lincoln, reserve champ.

Junior girls western pleasure champion was Kris Greenway, 13, of Ord, and Johna Klug, 13, of Maxwell, was reserve champion.

In the senior division of the girls western horsemanship, Susie Larson, 18, of Lincoln took championship honors, while Mary Rosebery, 14, of Mullen, was reserve champion.

Champion in the junior girls horsemanship division was Shelly Johnson, 13, of Plainview. Reserve champion honors went to Carol Broderick, 13, of Fairfield.

In the boys western pony pleasure division championship honors went to Bob Ballard Jr., 15, of Omaha, with Steve Roundtree, 15, of David City, reserve champ.

Junior boys western pleasure pony champion was Tom Fritz, 13, of Lincoln, while Paul Troyer, 13, of Oakland was reserve champ.

The girls western pleasure pony champion senior division, was Susan Mutch, 16, of Bellevue, with Linda Rodehorst, 16, of Columbus, reserve champ.

Junior girls western pony pleasure champion was Julie Burgess, 13, Rising City. Reserve champion was Caren Mülle, 12, of Lincoln.

Board to ponder coverage of anticipated LOMR deficit

Lancaster County Commissioners will meet Friday to determine if there is enough money available to cover an anticipated $55,000 deficit in the budget of the Lancaster Office of Mental Retardation (LOMR).

The deficit is due to "no mismanagement on anyone's part," LOMR business director Frank Faughn said Thursday.

The shortfall came about because Lincoln Public Schools took over the education of most school-age children in the LOMR program last September but failed to fully reimburse LOMR for a summer school program last July and August, Faughn explained.

LOMR has actually underspent its 1976-77 budget, partially in an effort to overcome the lost revenue, but not enough to make up the entire amount, he said.

The exact amount of the deficit will not be known until the financial statement for the end of June is available.

Because of a bookkeeping error, officials had been led to believe the deficit would be as high as $80,000, Faughn said.

Also affecting the total balance is a past encumbrance of $64,000 to the federal government for a possible audit exception. This money was not included in the 1976-77 budget.

"We're not running out of money," Director Bill Tempelmeyer said. If all accounts had been corrected at the end of May, LOMR would have had a cash balance of $6,300, he noted.

A similar problem will be avoided this summer as Lincoln Public Schools prepares to take over the LOMR high-school age program next fall.

LOMR will terminate this year's summer school program for adolescents July 25, rather than continuing it through August, in accordance with the school system's policy of providing the same number of hours for all students.

Center gets low priority

Grand Island (AP) — The Region 12 Crime Commission has given a low priority to a $200,000 juvenile detention center proposal for Grand Island.

The commission's No. 1 priority is a $50,000 request for officer training in the region, which includes Hall, Hamilton, Howard and Merrick counties.

Pesticide training given 40,000

Almost 40,000 Nebraskans have taken training since the first of the year in pesticide application, according to Emery W. Nelson, Extension pesticide training coordinator at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

"There have been 35,401 private and 4,282 commercial applicators certified," Nelson said, between Jan. 1 and April 30.

Fremont receives grant

Omaha (AP) — The Department of Housing and Urban Development has awarded a $358,300 community development block grant to the City of Fremont for installation of sanitary sewer collection lines, according to U.S. Sen. Edward Zorinsky, D-Neb.

Kearney sets power mark

Kearney (AP) — The Nebraska Public Power District said Kearney set a new power consumption record this week.

The record of 53 megawatts, reached Monday afternoon, compared with a previous high consumption record of 47 megawatts.

Roskens resigns bank post

Omaha (AP) — University of Nebraska President Dr. Ronald W. Roskens has resigned from the board of directors of the Omaha National Bank, the bank said Thursday. He had served on the board since 1974.

Roskens, formerly chancellor of the University of Nebraska at Omaha, cited the additional time requirements of his new university post and his move to Lincoln as reasons for stepping down from the bank's board.

Clark named officer

Columbus, Ohio (AP) — Nebraska Sen. Robert Clark of Sidney, Neb., was named vice chairman of the Midwest Conference of the Council of State Governments at the group's annual meet here. Delegates tabbed Illinois State Rep. Wallace S. Kozubowski as chairman.

The group's 1978 conference will be in Chicago and the 1979 session was scheduled for Omaha, Neb.

Runnerup honors to Wehrbeins

Omaha (AP) — Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Wehrbein, who operate a dairy farm near Plattsmouth, received the runnerup award in the annual Young Cooperator Contest of Mid-America Dairywomen Inc.

Mr. and Mrs. Larry Gosselin of Damar, Kan., were named the central states division winners.

Other area winners included Mr. and Mrs. Allen Korth of Meadow Grove, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stark of Hastings and Larry Moses of Burwell.

Governmental employees decline

Associated Press
Nebraska recorded a slight decrease in the number of state and local government employees per 10,000 residents between 1975 and 1976, according to a tax research organization.

"This is encouraging as the continual growth of government has been frightening and should be of concern to us all," the Nebraska Tax Research Council, Inc., said in a newsletter detailing the figures.

The tax research council calls itself a non-partisan organization and is headed by Forrest Johnson, former state tax commissioner.

The figures, compiled from Census Bureau data, showed that Nebraska had 564 state and local government employees per 10,000 population in 1975, but only 554 last year.

That represented a 1.8 per cent decrease. The rate of decrease in state employees only per 10,000 residents was 2.4 per cent and at the local government level it was 1.3 per cent.

Figures showed that between 1966 and 1976 the rate of increase in state-local government employees per 10,000 residents in Nebraska was 33.5 per cent.

The newsletter also contained wage information on Nebraska public employees.

The state of Nebraska ranked 37th among the 50 states in average monthly earnings of full-time state and local governmental employees in both 1975 and 1976," the council said.

As to average monthly earnings of full-time state employees only, Nebraska ranked 44th in 1976 after having been 47th in 1975 and on the bottom in 50th place in 1973," the council said.

Honeymoon trip isn't the usual

Omaha (AP) — The want ad called for an engaged couple seeking "30 days of outdoor work." But Sam Money and his fiancée never dreamed they'd be hired to spend a three-week honeymoon in a tent 25 feet above Omaha's busiest intersection.

"We needed a job," said Money, 19, explaining why he and his bride, Bridgette, 18, accepted the unusual assignment. They stand to earn $1,000 and a four-day trip to Las Vegas if they survive the 100-degree temperatures and lack of bathing facilities.

The honeymoon began Saturday, after the couple, their minister and the wedding party had climbed to a platform on scaffolding behind a marquee in the parking lot of the Crossroads shopping center.

The wedding over, minister and guests climbed down, but Sam and Bridgette crept into a canvas tent trailer, roughly eight feet wide by 16 feet long.

The stunt is cosponsored by the shopping center and a local radio station which changed its call letters from KLNK to KYNK June 1 and, according to manager Glenn Valentine, "needed some advertising."

Meals are catered by a department store cafe, and the couple has a small ice box for soft drinks and snacks. The tent is equipped with a portable toilet that gets emptied frequently.

Besides each other, Sam and Bridgette have for company a radio, a telephone, a small, black kitten and a Citizens Band radio supplied by a merchant. Their CB "handle" is the "Happy Honeymooners."

Newlyweds Sam Money and his wife Bridgette honeymoon high above Omaha.

"Night is the best time up here," Money said. "We roll up the window flaps, let the air in and talk on the CB. All kinds of people come to see us. We yell at each other, with us up here and all the people down below." The sign stands near the intersection of 72nd Street and Dodge, Omaha's busiest crossroads.

A makeshift air conditioner has provided little relief from this week's heat wave, so Money has been wearing cutoffs and his wife a bathing suit.

"We got so hot the other day that we took jugs of water and dumped them over each other," said Mrs. Money.

They've asked Valentine for a hose and a wading pool, but he said he didn't know whether a water hook-up was available.

"We're getting tired of sponge baths," Money said. So far they have come down twice — both times on Sunday when tornado warnings were issued. That didn't count against them, since safety was involved.

Following their honeymoon and the trip to Las Vegas, Money said both he and his wife will be looking for jobs.

"I don't know how it will be to leave this thing after three weeks," Money said. "It'll feel like home by then."

Four are arrested in Gretna farm raid

Gretna (AP) — Sarpy County Sheriff Patrick Thomas, with 13 deputies and four state troopers, raided a farmhouse southwest of Gretna Wednesday night, arresting four persons and confiscating large quantities of marijuana.

Arrested on suspicion of possession of marijuana with intent to deliver and possession of marijuana (a felony) were a 33-year-old man and a 24-year-old woman from Tempe, Ariz., an 18-year-old woman from Phoenix, Ariz., and a 25-year-old Orleans, Neb., man.

In addition, Thomas said the Tempe man was arrested for carrying a concealed weapon, a pistol, and the Phoenix woman was arrested for having a fraudulent driver's license.

The list of confiscated items included 300 pounds of marijuana compressed into bricks, 25 to 40 vials of hashish oil, hashish, a small amount of amphetamines, drug paraphernalia and $4,400 in cash.

Sheriff Thomas said the farmhouse "has been under surveillance for quite some time. It appears it is the distribution point for marijuana harvesters in eastern Nebraska, a kind of warehouse."

Thomas added that more arrests are pending in the case.

Power issues seen as legislative topics

Associated Press

At least 10 problem areas in Nebraska's public power arena are potential issues for review in the Legislature's proposed statewide survey of the power industry, according to power officials.

High on the list are territorial disputes between utilities, fuel supply, electric rates and the structure of the industry.

Industry representatives developed the list of problems and decided to forward it to a subcommittee on the power study.

Other problem areas, in addition to those ranked at the top of the issues' heap, include:

- Joint planning for power generation and transmission.
- Funding; covering whether there is adequate revenue and loan money available to meet needs.
- Possible streamlining of the regulatory process governing electric utilities.
- Whether there is a need to update laws on public power.
- Whether public bidding laws need revision.
- An overview of regulatory agencies, including the Power Review Board, the Department of Environmental Control, the Department of Water Resources, the state Energy Office and the Public Service Commission.

Conservation nominations open

Nominations are being accepted for the 1977 Conservation Awards Program, according to Glenn Johnson, Lower Platte South Natural Resources District assistant manager.

Awards are being offered in urban, agricultural, media, education and governmental categories. Winners for the district will compete in the state awards program, Johnson said. Deadline for nominations is Sept. 1.

Judiciary group may offer new judgeship system

United Press International

The Judiciary Committee of the Nebraska State Bar Association is expected to make a report in October on lifetime appointments of federal judges and may recommend that a new system be adopted.

Currently, the decision on who will serve on the federal bench is the exclusive province of the president and U.S. senators.

The American Judicature Society is urging that federal judicial nominating commissions be established in every state and suggests such an approach could lessen, if not eliminate, political pressure when a judge is appointed.

The society's concept is like the judicial nominating commission system used in Nebraska and many other states to fill judgeships on the state level.

Under the Nebraska system, the commission, made up of lay members appointed by the governor and attorneys elected by the bar association, submit lists of qualified individuals to the governor who selects the judges.

The society said a federal commission could be made up of nine members representing a broad base of the state's geographic and community interests.

It reported commission members should not hold public office, nor be officers of a political party.

The commission would submit three to five names to the president for appointment to the federal bench. Nebraska Sen. Edward Zorinsky said he supports the AJS philosophy and Sen. Carl Curtis said he is "not hostile" to it.

Zorinsky, a Democrat, said he thinks a commission's nomination list should be submitted to the state's appropriate U.S. Senator, who, like the president, should have the right to reject it and ask for another.

Curtis said he would not resent creation of a nominating commission but believes the senator should be brought into the decision-making process early "because he's eventually going to have to get the person confirmed."

80% of aid applicants at UNL to get funds

About 80% of the students applying to the University of Nebraska-Lincoln scholarships and financial aids office received some form of financial aid, according to director John Ritchie.

More than 8,000 students had applied for financial assistance. The office will mail notice of award letters this week, Ritchie said.

Dance for total health

By Harry Jackson
Star Staff Writer

If you don't dance, maybe you should. If you do, keep it up. It's good for you.

Dancing has been used by virtually every culture for every purpose from fun to fertility, from worship to celebration.

It's good for strengthening an underworked heart, gaining physical flexibility, relaxation, social contact and, now, even mental and social therapy.

A local psychiatric social worker is using dance movements in her work to bring troubled or introverted people out of themselves and into the world.

"I believe we have a need to move," said Sheila Collins, program director for the Homestead Institute for Creative Living. "When you start letting go, letting it all hang out, then you get feelings released you've always inhibited."

"We start inhibiting kids from infancy. In school they line up to walk to the bathroom, line up for lunch, all those military things," she said. "There's no real physical freedom allowed in this culture."

This is why so many people are so stiff and subdued when they dance, she says.

"A person's ability to move uninhibitedly is linked to interaction," Ms. Collins said.

In the work she's done with more than 100 clients, which come to her through referrals or personal inquiries, she spends time getting adults to move, dance or use other forms of expression to unlock their personalities.

"In our culture, the only time a person is allowed to be loose and uninhibited is when they're drunk," she said. "Then it's dangerous."

"Our culture teaches that the use of drugs — alcohol — is the only acceptable way of release," she said.

Dances depict a culture's demeanor, Ms. Collins said.

"Different cultures have different kinds of dances, and they usually show what the culture will or won't allow."

"And now the dances kids are doing aren't the old, stiff European kind," she said. "They're more akin to Africa. It shows the impact black America has had on the country."

A social worker, not a psychologist or doctor, Ms. Collins said most of her clients are women who participate in women's awareness programs which include body awareness and dancing and movement exercises.

Ms. Collins drew from her own expertise and interests to introduce dance to the social work field. Before becoming a social worker, she was a professional dancer.

Dance "is a way to sustain myself," she said. "You can really get high off of dance, really feel happy."

"I used to think it was just me until four or five years ago when I found out it was valuable for others," she said.

Since then, she's designed movement programs for others, including a gymnastics program for children with learning disabilities.

"Part of learning to energize is learning to relax," she said. "Dance is probably one of the most natural things. It's only when we start telling others that it's not that it (dance) doesn't help."

Sheila Collins was professional dancer.

How protected is that doggie in the window?

By Jim Camden
Star Staff Writer

If the window is in a pet store, the answer in Nebraska is: not very.

Federal, state and local officials told The Star that there virtually are no laws that protect those sad-eyed puppies, kittens, guinea pigs and hamsters that stare out at potential masters.

There are federal laws that govern the sale of exotic primates and dangerous animals such as venomous snakes. There are state statutes that regulate the sale of wild animals such as skunks and raccoons. There are city ordinances against letting dogs run loose or barking excessively.

But there are no laws that say the cages must be cleaned, or that the animals must be checked by a veterinarian or given adequate food and water.

Dr. Robert Moody, a veterinarian with the United States Department of Agriculture, said the conditions in some pet stores are shocking, but governments on all levels seem to be afraid of regulation.

In trying to find out how a complaint about a pet store could be registered, The Star called the city's newly created Animal Control Division. But that agency said it does not inspect pet stores, and suggested that the State Health Department be called.

The State Health Department suggested the State Agriculture Department, which suggested the USDA. After being routed through several secretaries at the USDA, a reporter was connected with Dr. Moody.

"It seems strange that the city can control whether you let weeds grow in your front lawn, but won't control some of these shops," Dr. Moody said.

Diane Kolarik, the owner of Lincoln's largest pet store, said she would like to see laws passed governing pet stores to keep just anyone from opening a shop.

"I would like some regulations as far as seeing that animals are cared for," Mrs. Kolarik said. Employees at Gateway Pet Center feed and water the pets and clean the cages three times a day, she said. A veterinarian checks the new animals that come in, and if an animal gets sick it is taken to a veterinary clinic and boarded there until it is well.

The Humane Society does receive complaints about pet stores and tries to get conditions improved. That agency, however, does not have the power to force changes, according to director Bernard Patton.

"The only thing I can do is to go out and suggest," Patton said, adding that most of the complaints his agency receives deal with cleanliness. Most of the time, his suggestions are followed, he said.

Many pet stores seem to be short handed, Patton said, and the employees spend most of the time waiting on customers and stocking shelves. The thing that becomes least important, he said, is taking care of the pets.

Dear Abby

By Abigail
Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I've been married for 14 years. I love my husband but I'm thinking seriously of having an affair. It's been years now since he's said, "I love you." He can go three or four weeks without making love to me, then it's only because I've suggested it, and I don't really enjoy it when I have to beg for it.

He gets off work at 4 p.m., goes to a bar with his buddies and doesn't come home until 6 or 7. He eats, and then falls asleep in front of the TV before 8. Then he gets up around 10 p.m. and goes to bed.

He's a good father and a good provider, but I can't take it anymore. I need love and attention.

A friend of ours asked me to have an affair with him. I had never even thought of anything like that. Now I can't think of anything else. I haven't made up my mind yet, but if you print this, maybe my husband (or other husbands) will see it and change before it's too late. I really love him and I've tried to get him to a doctor but he refuses. He says he's only 35 and there's nothing wrong with him. Well, I'm only 31 and I need love.

I don't really want to have an affair, but I'm slipping.

HUNGRY FOR LOVE
DEAR HUNGRY: Here's your letter. I hope your husband (and other men who can identify with the above routine) see this and wake up before it's too late.

DEAR ABBY: Our dog will be going to doggy heaven any day now. Frisky is 90 in human years and he's in awfully bad shape. He's nearly blind and he's so weak he keeps falling down.

We can't bear the thought of putting him to sleep, but want to know where to bury him when the time comes.

We can't afford a plot in the pet cemetery, and he's meant too much to our family to just put him out with the trash. The children want to bury him in our backyard, but I hear there's a law against that. Can you help us?

FRISKY'S FAMILY
DEAR FAMILY: When Frisky dies, phone your local animal shelter. They will come and pick him up. Under no circumstances should you put an animal's remains in a trash can that you intend to use again. And in most areas there are laws against burying an animal in a residential section.

DEAR ABBY: My girlfriend doesn't shave under her arms or even use a deodorant, and she just plain smells bad! I can't understand how she can go around offending people that way, and then blaming them because she doesn't get invited places.

She's a very sensitive person (all except for her nose), that's why I can't tell her what I have just told you.

Any advice?
OFFENDED
DEAR OFFENDED: You can and must tell her how she smells. It's the friendliest thing you can do.

DEAR ABBY: There is an old guy in our town who is driving everybody nuts. He's about 75 years old, and he can't keep his paws off women. No waitress will get within six feet of him. When he comes into the restaurant, the cashier has to take his order, and the cook comes out of the kitchen to serve it to him!

This guy went to a doctor for a checkup, and the nurse told me that if he ever came back, she was going to have a pair of handcuffs ready. Everybody in town knows about him. I can't understand why they let a man like that run loose. Isn't he dangerous?

PASO ROBLES
DEAR PASO: Probably not. If everybody in town knows about him, they're safe. It's the ones they DON'T know about who are dangerous.

Hawaii — "Hawaii begins at takeoff," says the brochure.

"Gala departure from the Aloha Lounge."

In the Aloha Lounge, a number of people were sitting around drinking pineapple juice. A large Hawaiian held a guitar. He said: "First you must learn the greeting of the islands — Aloha. Let's hear it. Aloooooo!"

"Aloooooo!" we said.

These are the tours that brought 3.2 million people to Hawaii last year. Probably more this year. This one tour company alone has eight groups touring the islands.

Red Group gets out of bed and goes to the next island. Green group arrives and gets into the vacated room. It's a chess game with coco palm trimmings.

"Free luau! Free welcome cocktail! Free Japan happi coat!"

The travel brochure said: "Eight fun-packed days, seven glamorous nights in Hawaii." On the cover in four glowing colors, a glamorous wahine looks directly into your glamor-filled eyes. (Where at's dat wahine, brudda? I nevaah meet her.)

Said the travel agency man: "Eighty per cent of the first-time visitors to Hawaii go by tour. You really should do it."

For around $500, the tour people take you for five days and four nights through the outer islands. Three days and three nights in Honolulu.

It's quite a bargain. And something of a survival course.

Postcard

By Stan
Delaplane

The tour man said to me: "Tour groups are very hard to handle. I think it's because it's their first visit to the islands — sometimes the first time in an airplane."

"They are on an inexpensive tour, and they are wondering what the gimmick is. Are we going to short them somewhere. 'If we fail to come up with one thing that is promised, oh my!'"

"Then there's the problem of shifting sometimes — adjusting schedules."

"Maybe there's 30 tours moving around. While one group gets off an airplane and we take them sightseeing, another group is checking out of the hotel."

"Now if the airline has to knock off a flight, how do we get Group Two underway so we can get the rooms for Group One?"

While the jet whistled across the dark Pacific, the stewardesses served cocktails, dinner, champagne and after-dinner drinks.

The big Hawaiian played ukulele.

"You are divided into four groups," he said. "Red, green, blue and gold. Your tickets are the color of your group. Your bags are tagged the color of your group. Any questions?"

A lady raised her hand. "Where are the happi coats?"

The Hawaiian looked embarrassed. He said by some mischance, the happi coats did not get aboard.

"But they will come on the next plane."

"It says distinctly in the brochure that we get a free happi coat," said the lady.

"Well, how do you do it?" I asked. "The group director must improvise and do a new briefing on the bus," he said.

"You figure we have four groups right on this airplane. Some on the eight-day tour. Some on the 15-day tour. But all overlapping in some places. Combining in others. Splitting in others."

The Hawaiian picked up the ukulele and said he would teach anybody — everybody — how to sing a Hawaiian song: "Aloha Oe."

"And don't forget the color of your group," he said.

The Voice of the Turtle

Out of the blue of the western sky,
Comes the man with a passionate gleam in his eye.
On wings and prayers of some mother lode.
From within speaks a voice, marks a new episode.
Of a challenge to see what's beyond the next hill.
Of a dream coming true, wake and be what you will.
Forging metal and metaphor strong for all time.
Tempered twice, perhaps thrice, with a sensitive rhyme.
Blend experience full measure, level teaspoons of trust.
Recipe of resolve, it's the brass ring or bust!
And the turtle will turn and touch way down inside.
Listen please with your heart, let it be your guide.

The Rags of Time

Default.
By degrees.
Helpless stumbling into bankruptcy.
And dominoes they do fall.
We all rushing into brave new worlds.
Armed with four guide maps of Hollywood.
Future-shock will surely lock out pains of narrow-minded unpreparedness.
Days,
the months,
the years,
the rags of time will clothe the line of children born of darkness.
Extrapolate the rate of birth and death.
Disease we'll someday cure.
Decelerate not just debate the vortices of pain.
Let the futurists smile
because all the while.
We are architects of tomorrow.
Let our sun not go down
while it is still day!
And our rags will yet turn into silk.

Windrider

Out upon the barren flats.
Swirling sand, the choking ghost.
Netherland where storms are spawned.
Fringe of fear, the outermost.
Pounding hooves relentlessly.
Timeless quest equestrian.
Locked onto doubt elusive.
Booked onto oblivion.
Past and present fuse in time.
Catch the flaring nostrils near.
Horse and horseman move as one.
Challenging, they disappear.
High upon a mountain slope.
Vantage point, survey the scene.
Daily the windrider's chase.
Pursuing Truth unforeseen.

This is a double-dummy problem. The contract is Seven Hearts and West leads the nine of spades. It is perfectly proper to look at all four hands in attempting to find the solution. How should you play the hand?

You start with twelve tricks and must try to find a thirteenth. Assuming best defense by East-West, your only chance to make the grand slam is by a squeeze.

The three elements usually necessary for a successful squeeze are all present: 1. You have all the remaining tricks except one. 2. One opponent, in this case East, has two suits to guard (spades and diamonds). 3. You will have satisfactory communication between your own hand and dummy's when the squeeze card is led later on.

Play a low spade from dummy at trick one and take East's jack with the king. Draw five rounds of trumps, discarding a low spade from Cash the king of clubs, then overtake the queen with the ace and lead the jack of clubs. This last play destroys East. If he discards a spade, you make the contract by discarding a diamond and cashing the ace of spades, on which East's queen falls to make your ten a trick.

If East chooses to discard a diamond on the jack of clubs, you also discard a diamond, then cash the ace of diamonds, and ruff a diamond, making dummy's jack of diamonds a trick.

There is no escape for East. He must inevitably succumb as the pressure is exerted against him.

U.S. Indians dance in Paris

Paris (UPI) — American Indians dancing against an unusual setting — medieval Notre Dame Cathedral — are one of the sights offered to tourists this month in Paris. Dressed in native costumes, a group of Apache Indians led by their chief, Hipo' Lo' Ta, director of the cultural center at Fort Apache, Ariz., perform warlike and magic dances every day under the porch of the 12th century shrine.

Stocks set 'greed trap'

New York — The toughest decision in the world, for investors holding a stock or bond that has shot up in value, is the decision to sell. Will the security keep on going up, in which case you'll kick yourself for selling too soon? Or is the game about over?

That's the hard question facing many holders of New York City securities in the wake of last week's disastrous blackout. How they analyze their problem, and what they decide to do, is relevant to anyone holding a speculative security that — so far — has done well.

It may surprise you to think of New York City securities as good investments. But for those who bought during the scare of 1975, when it finally became apparent that the city couldn't pay its debts, the bonds and notes have been spectacular performers.

At that time, city bonds could be bought for 30 to 40 cents on the dollar. Now they're selling in the area of 60 to 65 cents. Many investors have come close to doubling their money in less than two years. If they bought bonds on margin (putting up only a small amount of money and borrowing the rest) their profits have been even higher.

Besides the capital gain, the city securities have returned handsome income. Two years ago you could get yields of 11 to 12% tax free. Even today they're yielding 8%, compared with 5 to 6% on top-rated municipals.

In other words, holders of the city's securities are facing that moment of truth that confronts any speculator: Do you take your profits and run, or do

It's Your Money

By Jane Bryant Quinn

you hang on in hope of an even better tomorrow? That 8% tax-free yield is a particularly strong inducement to hang on, since it can't be had anywhere else in the municipal market.

"It's a greed trap," says Richard Bock, a broker at the Sartorius Division of Advest. Bock recommended the purchase of city bonds in 1975 and 1976, but since the first of this year he has been advising customers to sell. "The more success people have with an investment, the harder it is to convince them that it might go down," he says.

"If you've had a good run, and start to sense the possibility of bad news, it's time to sell," Bock believes. "Especially with a speculation like city bonds which you know are high risk."

The first day the financial markets opened after the blackout, city investors didn't turn a hair. There was little activity in the bonds, and their price remained unchanged most of the day. "I had a lot of phone calls," says Bock, "but only one order to sell."

Jean Rousseau, manager of the municipal bond department at Merrill Lynch, saw that as a good sign. "Investors are saying that big or little disturbances in the daily life of the city make no difference to the security of the debt," he says.

When trying to decide whether to hold or sell a security that has gone up in price, investors are always confronted with plenty of good news. In the New York City situation, Rousseau ticks off the good points: The courts have ordered the city to pay its debts when due and not use any phony "moratoriums," which are the moral equivalent of default. The proposed city budget next year contains all the revenues needed to cover the debts (although Rousseau concedes that the budget projections are "precarious," a polite word for "suspect").

It's those intimations of bad news that make securities risky. "Maybe the city will pay its 1978 debt and the price of the bonds will go even higher," says Bock. "But maybe not. A lot of the optimistic figures in the budget are phony. It's clear that the city still doesn't have control of its payroll. And the pillage of the poorer sections during this blackout will make industries even more reluctant to invest in New York. I don't think the city can make it without some form of default."

A speculative stock almost always has a story on both sides. But if you already have a good profit, how much more risk do you want to run? Joe Kennedy once summed up the "conservative" speculator's creed. When asked how he made so much money on stocks, he replied: "By selling too soon."

Kansas awaits film premiere

Dodge City, Kan. (AP) — A commercial movie that is unique in that it was conceived, filmed and financed in Kansas will be given its premiere here on July 27.

The story is about the young son of a sheriff who joins some other boys and an older man in robbing at least three banks.

Most of the scenes were filmed here. Bank robberies were shot at Ness City, Jetmore and Bucklin.

The time is in the early 1930s, when cars had replaced horses as transporters of outlaws and their pursuers. Owners and restorers of antique cars in southwest Kansas provided the wheels.

The camera work was completed almost a year ago. Doug Johnson, producer and director, in the meantime has edited the film and perfected the sound track at Brigham Young University at Provo, Utah.

"Moonlight Express" originated with David Carter, marketing instructor at Dodge City Community College. Dick Basgall, Dodge City writer and actor, converted Carter's story into a movie script. About 70 people in Dodge City and vicinity bought stock in the venture.

Disclosure unit told to decide on judges

United Press International

The State Justice Department Thursday said the Nebraska Political Accountability and Disclosure Commission is responsible for determining whether judges are excluded from filing campaign statements.

The department's opinion on filing requirements was requested by Ralph Slocum, commission secretary. Slocum asked for a clarification on whether the 1976 "Sunshine Law" exempted judges from filing campaign statements.

Slocum also wanted to know whether candidates for offices in cities, villages and towns are covered by the part of the political accountability and disclosure act that calls for filing campaign and disclosure statements.

Patrick O'Brien, assistant attorney general, said candidates for municipal offices are required to file campaign disclosure statements. But, he said, the same municipal candidates apparently are not required to file financial disclosure statements, unless specifically required to do so by law.

In reference to the filing requirements for judges, O'Brien said the commission should promulgate rules and regulations to resolve the issue.

O'Brien said his review of the "Sunshine Law" doesn't conclusively answer the question of whether a judge — or officeholder — who makes less than $100 is required to file a campaign statement.

The law could be construed to exempt officeholders and judges in three different instances, O'Brien said. But because of the law's vagueness, "it is our opinion that the commission... may promulgate a rule or regulation which makes clear the perceived intent of this section as the commission believes it should be construed," he said.

In reference to Slocum's second question about whether candidates for municipal offices are required to file financial statements, O'Brien said the law only applies to candidates listed in the statute.

"There is no mention (in the law) of holding elective or appointive office on the municipal level," O'Brien said. "It is our opinion that persons holding a municipal office are not required... to file a disclosure statement," he said.

With respect to campaign reporting requirements, O'Brien said a candidate or committee is required to file reports when more than $400 is raised, received or spent.

Therefore, he said, persons elected to or seeking offices of municipal authority are required to follow the law when filing campaign disclosure statements.

NU conservation, survey unit verifies June was hot, warm

The month of June was warm and dry in Nebraska, figures compiled by the University of Nebraska Conservation and Survey Division verify.

Temperatures averaged about seven degrees above normal in the Panhandle and two to four degrees above normal in other areas of the state, the division's summary reveals.

Nebraska City chalked up the state's highest temperature reading of 102 on June 4, equalled at Syracuse on June 10.

The month's lowest temperature of 39 degrees was reported from Agate in Sioux County the morning of June 1.

June precipitation was below normal in all divisions of the state. The central, east central, southwest, south central and southeast divisions received about one-half the amount of precipitation normally received in June.

Accumulated precipitation for April through June was above normal in all divisions except the southeast division which recorded only 85% of normal.

At the end of June, cumulative moisture shortages of 15% to 30% below normal existed for the period May, 1976, through June, 1977, in the Panhandle, northeast, east central, south central and southeast divisions.

Penal Complex inmates get diplomas, certificates

Eighty-six inmates of the Nebraska Penal Complex received diplomas and certificates in a ceremony at the penitentiary Wednesday.

Another 167 graduated but were not present because they had already gone home.

The ceremony attracted many visitors, including small children of inmates, wives, girlfriends and parents.

Among this year's graduating class were 74 who earned high school diplomas, 76 who completed skills training courses through Southeast Community College, and 103 who finished programs directed by the Department of Vocational Rehabilitation.

Education supervisor Barry Buxton said he would like to have twice as many inmates graduate. Since joining the prison staff last September, he has stepped up efforts to attract men to the school.

Electricity needs expected to jump

Philadelphia (UPI) — The nation's electricity needs will take an enormous leap by the end of this century, the Edison Electric Institute says.

Institute Chairman Floyd W. Lewis estimates the need will be three or four times the present figure and says the country is "headed for an economy which increasingly will be based on electricity."

He said over the next decade production of electricity should rise by about 75%.

Douglas refuses to give state aid opinion

By Nancy Hicks
Star Staff Writer

Attorney General Paul Douglas has refused to issue an opinion on how state aid funds would be distributed if a petition drive to repeal the 1977 state aid to education law is successful.

But the State Department of Education isn't taking that no as a final answer.

Commissioner Anne Campbell probably will address the same question to Douglas, but in a different way, pointing out the impact that the question has on individual school districts, said Al Bielen, finance director for the department.

Douglas refused to give the first opinion, requested by Lincoln Sen. Shirley Marsh. He said the opinion would be inappropriate because it could influence the outcome of the state aid issue.

The drive is aimed at repealing the 1977 law, LB33, which increases state aid from $55 million to $75 million this year. If the petition drive is successful, LB33 would be suspended until the 1978 general election when voters would decide the fate of the law.

Douglas' failure to write an opinion on the state aid issue means school districts may not be able to count on getting either $75 million or $55 million in state aid this year, according to Loren Brakenhoff, executive secretary of the Nebraska Council of School Administrators.

"To be absolutely safe," Brakenhoff said, "school districts better not figure on getting any money at all. We would know more if this question had been answered specifically by the attorney general," he said.

And if any money is distributed, the State Department of Education will have no assurance as to the formula that will be used, he said. "It's a very serious question of what school districts can do with their budgets," he said.

The education department probably will point out the immediacy of this problem on individual school districts which must have budgets finished by Aug. 15 and the mill levies set by Sept. 1, said Bielen.

The department will be seeking answers to both the amount of school aid and the method of distribution, said Bielen, adding that the final decision on the letter to Douglas will come from Commissioner Campbell who is out of town this week.

The loss of the $20 million in state aid would raise Lincoln's property taxes by more than 2 mills. If the total state aid to education money is held up, Lincoln would have to levy an additional 12 mills to make up the almost $6.8 million the district would lose in state aid payments.

Douglas said that the questions raised by Sen. Marsh were not properly presented. We do not feel it would be appropriate to respond at this time to you as a member of the Legislature," he wrote.

In addition, Douglas cited a Justice Department policy of issuing opinions only after the entire Legislature had requisitioned an opinion on the effect of a proposed constitutional amendment.

The policy "was developed many years ago, apparently after a situation where an opinion of the attorney general was used in an attempt to influence the vote on a proposed constitutional amendment," Douglas said.

The attorney general paralleled the petition drive to the situation with the constitutional amendment.

"We do not feel that it would be appropriate for this office to issue an opinion which might be used to influence the petition drive and, if successful, the vote of the people on this subject," he said.

80 survey factors determined Lincoln's first of 100 rating

This week Lincoln was declared the most attractive of the nation's 100 largest cities.

The survey, based on 80 measurable factors relating to economic, demographic and social environment, was conducted by Dr. Ralph Todd of the Center for Applied Urban Research at the University of Nebraska at Omaha.

Following is where Lincoln ranked in each of the 80 categories:

Economic Factors
Per capita income 41, central city per capita income 10, housing construction costs 70, hospital room cost 19, car, truck registrations 57, bus services 8, residential electric rate 9, commercial electric rate 13, industrial electric rate 15, natural gas rate 34, retail sales change 11, manufacturing jobs change 26, increase in manufacturing/wages 11, increase in manufacturing/employees 21, average house value 9, building permits 8, central city building permits 5, bank deposits 26, average unemployment 5, telephones 22, city debt 41, non-school taxes 22, property value change 11, city employees hired 77, municipal bond rating 2, AFDC recipients 5, fire rating 4, restaurant prices 13, food stamp use 2, bank offices 50, purchasing power under $15,000 45.

Demographic/Environmental Factors
Persons per acre 23, population migration 16, white in population 1, registered voters 57, divorces 26, deaths 16, flu, pneumonia deaths 69, suicides 46, infant deaths 2, traffic fatalities 11, accidental deaths 2, hospitals 22, hospital beds 69, physicians 38, registered nurses 49, nursing home beds 37, sunshine 15, particulate pollution in air 23, carbon monoxide in air 28, heating degree days 82, average wind speed 22.

Crime Factors
Robberies 1, negligent manslaughter 1, non-negligent manslaughter 4, rapes 22, burglaries 2, assaults 25, larceny 38, motor thefts 2.

Rats reported in Grand Island

Grand Island (UPI) — Ed Edwards, Hall County-Grand Island Health Department director, Thursday said the department has discovered rats in the northwest part of the city.

Edwards said the department made a follow up investigation after a citizen complained. One person, he said, killed two rats in the area, and health department officials have taken steps to eliminate the problem.

However, he said department investigators have been unable to find a food source that would attract the rats or sustain them.

"So, we're really speculating now," he said. "There's a lot of open country in the area and some nice gardens that could supply food this time of year," he said.

Inmates plead innocent to assaulting officer

Three inmates involved in the abortive escape attempt at the city jail last month each pleaded innocent Thursday in U.S. District Court to assaulting a federal officer.

Marvin Gerhardt, formerly of Wilber, Robert Bessent, of Las Vegas, and Robert Parker, who has no known address, were arraigned on a charge of assaulting U.S. Marshall Jack Douglas.

The offense carries a penalty of 10 years in jail or $10,000 fine, or both. The three already face state charges that could put them in prison for a total of 110 years if convicted.

U.S. District Judge Warren K. Urbom set Sept. 22 as the trial date for the trio. Toney Redman and Thomas Hagel of the Lancaster County Public Defenders Office were assigned to represent them.

Real estate company seeking to evict Leta Powell Drake

Capitol Beach, Inc., is trying to evict local television hostess Leta Powell Drake from her lot at 332 W. Lakeshore Dr.

In a lawsuit filed in Lancaster County District Court, the real estate firm alleges Ms. Drake has not paid her yearly rent on the lot. Ms. Drake owns the house, but rents a lot on a 50-year lease.

The company charges Ms. Drake was notified in May that she was $798 arrear in her rent. The suit also says she failed to pay real estate taxes for 1975.

Ms. Drake filed suit against the company in June, charging that it did not maintain the sea wall, boat docks and walks as promised in the lease agreement.

Air base blowout burns 5

Bellevue (AP) — Three civilian and two military workers assigned to the 3902nd Civil Engineers Squadron were burned Thursday in a blowout at an oil switch in an electric line at Offutt Air Force Base.

The five were admitted to the base hospital for treatment of burns and observation and three were to be flown to the Brook Burn Facility at San Antonio, Tex.

Listed in serious condition were Frank W. Koke, Anthony Blessner, Allan D. Ruffner and Airman 1.C. Daniel J. Thompson. Airman 1.C. William Holliday was admitted and was in fair condition.

Base officials said the workers with the exception of Holliday and Thompson were to be taken to San Antonio.

The accident caused a temporary power loss to some base support facilities. An investigation board was appointed to probe the mishap.

FBI drawn into stolen hams case

Omaha (AP) — The FBI Thursday entered a case in which a load of $50,000 worth of canned hams bound from Omaha for Florida was sold in Kansas Wednesday.

Police said the driver apparently stole the semitrailer while working for Watkins Motorlines, Inc., of Omaha. Watkins said one of its trailer rigs failed to arrive on schedule in Florida Wednesday.

The company said the trailer contained nearly 35,000 pounds of Farmland brand canned hams when it left Omaha last Thursday.

Meanwhile, Kansas Bureau of Investigation agents notified Omaha police that Farmland Hams were being sold Wednesday in the Topeka area at below cost. A Kansas official said a chain of tire stores had purchased a truckload of hams.

Watkins Motorlines employees told Omaha police that last Thursday a man answered a newspaper ad the company had placed for a truck driver. He supplied the company with a name and credentials identifying him as an experienced driver from Kansas, and they hired him.

Wednesday, police said, the employees picked a picture from the FBI mug files that they identified as that of the man who drove off in the truck. Police said the 41-year-old man identified was known to have bilked other companies in similar schemes in the past.

Health picture still improving for Americans

Omaha (UPI) — The total health of Americans is improving but there are some nuances in the picture, the president of the Nebraska Medical Association said Thursday.

"Recent health gains appear to have outweighed the debits," Dr. Arnold W. Lempska said. "Of the 10 leading causes of death five years ago, all but one have decreased and our death rate is the lowest in history."

But he said the cancer death rate as well as the suicide and homicide rates are rising. The proportion of the population handicapped by a chronic illness or injury is also rising, he said.

Lempska said the average age of the American continues to rise.

In 1967 he noted, there were 18.8 million Americans 65 or older but by 1975 the figure jumped to 22.3 million.

Education post appointee told

Joe E. Lutjeharms has been appointed Nebraska Department of Education deputy commissioner, effective August 1, announced Nebraska Commissioner of Education Anne Campbell.

Lutjeharms, former superintendent of the Lamar County School District in Cheyenne, Wyo., holds an A.B. degree in education from Kearney State College and an M.A. in education from the University of Nebraska-Lincoln and a Ph.D. in education administration from the University of Northern Iowa.

He will replace Harold Fink, who resigned to take a position with the Gering Schools.

Shared campsites eyed for United Way agencies

By Linda Olig
Star Staff Writer

Four United Way youth agencies which include camping in their overall programs will be asked to meet a March 1 deadline for developing a plan for sharing campsites among themselves and other community agencies.

The recommendation was approved Thursday by the Lincoln and Lancaster County United Way board.

Affected agencies are the Girl Scouts, Camp Fire Girls, Scouting USA (Boy Scouts) and YMCA.

The United Way is acting as a "catalyst" in the coordination of campsites, said United Way president Al Sward.

Dave Piester, president of the United Way Executives Association, asked that the recommendation be tabled so that the affected agencies could take a position.

His motion died for lack of a second.

Piester, an attorney and director of Legal Services of Southeast Nebraska, came to the defense of the four youth agencies.

In response to rapid-fire questions from Piester, Doug Higgins, United Way executive director said, "United Way does not fund camping, not directly. But financial help frees dollars for other uses."

Compliance with the recommendation is not required for future United Way funding, Higgins said, but, if the agencies don't, "we would be very disappointed."

"If United Way does not fund it (camping), it is hard-pressed to justify" the request, Piester concluded.

The larger issue, he said, may be "to what degree United Way directs the activities of agencies in programs not funded by United Way."

Nearly two years ago, Higgins pointed out, United Way's planning division reviewed agencies' campsites and described sharing among community agencies in other cities. Most of the agency directors "were receptive to the alternatives" presented. Yet, he said, there has been no move on their part towards sharing or coordination.

"Some agencies build up liabilities as a result of their camping operations," Sward said.

"Some people don't understand the gravity of the problem," said Dave Patrick. "It is life and death for some agencies."

Sward and Patrick were referring indirectly to the financially-troubled YMCA. Earlier this year the YMCA asked its creditors for an 18-month moratorium on a $550,000 debt, including a mortgage on Camp Kitaki near Louisville.

In a letter to the United Way board, Homestead Girl Scout Council President Anabeth Frazier wrote:

"Prior to actively pursuing this study, I feel it imperative for the Girl Scouts to go on record as strong proponents of this procedure."

The letter was addressed to the board in care of Sward. It was not distributed at the Thursday meeting.

"Our camping operation does not operate, nor has it ever operated, in the red. It is totally supported by the agency through funds collected by the girls (through cookie sales) and fees charged to the users," Mrs. Frazier wrote.

In addition, she requested $2,000 from United Way "to cover our part of the expenses for the study."

United Way says fund goal won't be set until Sept. 8

The 1978 United Way campaign goal won't be set until the day before the fund drive's Sept. 8 kick-off.

The Lincoln and Lancaster County United Way board agreed Thursday to delay setting a campaign goal until board members and member agencies have fully reviewed all budget figures.

United Way budget volunteers, headed by Chuck Wahl, agency relations chairman, have recommended a tentative figure of $1,745,131, more than 9% higher than last year's $1.6 million goal which was exceeded by more than $30,000.

The tentative figure includes a $70,000 provision for uncollectible pledges and $20,000 tentatively set aside for the Indian Center's health program.

This spring, the United Way board approved admission of the Indian Center program which proposes to assure quality health care for native Americans.

However, Indian Center budget requests and program descriptions have not been firm, the board was told Thursday. A Sept. 1 deadline for submission of acceptable documents was established.

The board also adopted a Volunteer Bureau policy concerning placement of volunteers in private nursing homes. The policy prohibits replacement of paid staff by volunteers and outlines what services volunteers can and cannot perform.

In other action, Gary Schwendiman was named to the board to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Jim Geist.

Cross ablaze

The steeple of Holy Rosary Roman Catholic Church in southern Minneapolis blazed furiously after it was struck by lightning Wednesday. A crane was used to remove the cross and some wood from the steeple as a safety precaution after the fire was put out.

Nebraskans urged to seek malpractice law exemption

U.S. Rep. John Cavanaugh said Thursday he will take action to exempt himself and his family from the state's new medical malpractice law, and he advised other Nebraskans to do the same.

Cavanaugh said he was disappointed with a Nebraska Supreme Court decision Wednesday which upheld the constitutionality of the state's controversial medical malpractice law.

Nebraskans who wish to avoid the law's provisions may file notice with the state insurance director and then could sue under common law.

Cavanaugh said he would "most definitely be among those Nebraskans who will exempt themselves" from the new law, "and I think that any other person concerned about his family's health care would do likewise."

As a state senator from Omaha, Cavanaugh was a key opponent of the 1976 legislation and one of four lawmakers to vote against its enactment.

"I am severely disappointed in the decision,"

Cavanaugh said in a telephone interview from his Washington office.

Noting that four of the court's seven judges dissented in part, Cavanaugh said, "It seems particularly unjust that the people of the State of Nebraska will have this clear injustice imposed upon them."

Cavanaugh said facts presented to the Unicameral before the bill was passed "clearly showed there was not a malpractice (insurance) crisis in Nebraska, but an excessive windfall benefit to insurance companies who were overcharging the doctors and their patients for coverage."

"Because the legislature and the medical profession were unwilling to deal with the reality of excessive premiums not based on fact the future rights of all Nebraskans to be fairly compensated for injuries caused by negligent physicians have been eroded," Cavanaugh said.

State Atty. Gen. Paul Douglas has said he will instruct the insurance department to begin implementation of the law.

Two arrested for burglary

Charges are expected to be filed Friday against two men arrested in connection with a burglary of a downtown pawn shop.

A front window of Charlie's Jewelry and Pawn Shop, 909 O St., was broken sometime Wednesday night or Thursday morning. A variety of rings and watches, valued at over $570, was taken from a display stand inside the window, police said.

Yutan nurse's license is revoked

The State Board of Nursing Thursday revoked the nursing license of Jon A. Martin, R.N., of Yutan on the grounds that he allegedly violated the Nebraska's professional nursing code on several occasions and because he previously was convicted of a felony.

During a public hearing preceding the board's decision, three witnesses testified that records at St. Joseph Hospital at Omaha indicate that Martin allegedly obtained drugs through the falsification of hospital records.

Martin was employed at St. Joseph from November, 1976, until April 1977, when his job there was terminated due to the falsification of records.

Also, William Arnold, a registered pharmacist at Wahoo Pharmacy in Wahoo, told board members that on April 9, 1977, he filled a prescription on which Martin had allegedly forged the signature of a St. Joseph physician.

In 1975, Martin was placed on two-years probation by the Douglas County District Court after pleading no contest to fraudulently obtaining controlled substances. After the incident, Martin surrendered his nursing license to the nursing board.

However, Martin's license later was conditionally reinstated by the board.

Martin was not present at the Thursday afternoon hearing.

All-Star game acknowledges baseball's debt to fans

By Jerry Izenberg
Newhouse News

New York — When you really get down to it, the people who still want to believe in the role of baseball in American life (and there are millions of them) owe a vote of thanks to Nolan Ryan. Unless you have been wandering through the Gobi Desert this past month, you are surely aware that Ryan is the fellow who more or less said that now that he was selected he would not run and if physically kidnapped, he would not pitch in the annual all-star baseball game.

Moreover, you must know that the game itself is tied directly to the players' pension fund and if a man chooses not to participate in something which guarantees his future, the next logical step would be to ask for retirement money now because it has apparently become a birthright. What was so important about Nolan's stand, which was, indeed, more honest than faking or exaggerating an injury as some have done in the past, was that it apparently returned the power of speech to many of his colleagues.

Now only a man deep in the throes of a private universe would believe for a moment that the all star baseball game is supposed to be anything more than superb entertainment from a competitive standpoint. But its existence is the acknowledgement of a debt of sorts from the men who play this little boys' game for money to the people who make the money possible.

And, truthfully, you would be hard-pressed to find a time in space when more ball players stepped forward to acknowledge that debt.

It was not so much that they were putting down Nolan Ryan (who had every right to be bitter as proud men can be) as it was the fact that they were pointing out that he definitely should have come.

In a way a lot of them were saying something on their own behalf. The very night of the game, Johnny Bench recalled with a fair amount of emotion the fact that he has been the all-star catcher every year since he became a Cincinnati regular. He said it almost as though he had trouble believing it, even though he was the MVP in the World Series last year.

There was much the same tone to Don Sutton's remarks and probably nothing made the point any stronger than Sparky Anderson's praise of Larry Bowa for blasting the way he was snubbed. To carry the theory to its logical conclusion, even George Scott's anger at the selection process and the final result of the game was a reaffirmation of a sudden public pride on the part of a great many major league baseball players.

We have all of us been so overwhelmed by the huge sums of money (much of it spent for nothing in return) during this free agent business that we are inclined to forget that there are 650 major league ball players and not all of them whine and cry and act as though the French playwright Edmund Rostand was dreaming of them when he wrote:

"I fall back dazzled at beholding myself all rosy red, at having I myself, cause the sun to rise."

Here in this town, for example, watching the Yankees claw and tear at themselves with a death-wish worthy of a plaque at Cooperstown, we are inclined to forget the way this game can be

We forget that in a city like Chicago, two ball clubs which are relatively devoid of super-priced talent can play in two separate parks and for roughly 10 days before the all-star game, each receive a standing ovation before each game at home.

We forget that relative balance in three of the four pennant chases (combined with tired arms and assorted acts of childishness at Yankee Stadium) have swept baseball into an attendance boom which, even if you delete the expansion teams, shows an impressive increase.

We forget that if baseball is played at a leisurely pace on a geometrical surface with a tightly structured set of rules, its very lack of violence may be what makes it the kind of game we need all the more these summers.

And we forget that rare moments can carry their own artistry within themselves and you do not necessarily need a pennant to share the appreciation this game can generate.

Most of all, however, this town generated its own lesson in how strong those ties can be. It generated it the other night in the blazing, almost oppressively uncomfortable night when Tom Seaver was introduced in the pregame ceremonies.

The roar which forced him to step forward to acknowledge it was greeted by applause from the other National Leaguers standing in that ceremonial line.

Clearly when you get past the spoiled brats and the venal owners, baseball is still a hell of a game.

Free agents earn first half awards

By Hal Bock
Associated Press

The All Star break seems a proper time to make the first half awards for the baseball season. The winners need not make any acceptance speeches. In fact, it would be preferred if they did not.

The Free Agent White Elephant Trophy—Awarded jointly to Don Baylor of the California Angels and Wayne Garland of the Cleveland Indians.

Baylor, who gave California Angels owner Gene Autry his autograph in exchange for about $275,000 annually for the next six years, is batting a pathetic .230 with a mere 31 runs batted in.

Garland has rewarded Cleveland's 10-year $2.3 million investment so far with a 7-9 won-loss log and a 4.31 earned run average.

The Charles O. Finley Good Guy Award—This one goes to M. Donald Grant, chairman of the board of the New York Mets, who managed to get most of metropolitan New York angry by trading away folk hero Tom Seaver.

Finley was never the most popular guy in Oakland, but that's small potatoes compared to having a healthy chunk of eight million people angry at you.

The Disappearing Act Plaque—To Eddie Stanky, who managed the Texas Rangers for one whole game and decided that was quite enough, thank you.

The What, Me Worry? Certificate—Presented to Ted Turner, owner of the Atlanta Braves. Suspended from baseball for one year, Turner did not put but simply cruised off into the sunset, headed for Newport, R.I. and the America's Cup yachting trials.

Accepting the award for Commander Turner will be Popeye, the sailor man.

The Presto Chango Trophy—Awarded to the city of Chicago for the performance of the White Sox and Cubs, who must be doing it with magic.

Both Chicago clubs reached the mid-season break in first place and you could have gotten awfully rich if you knew three months ago that was going to happen.

The Team Turmoil Award—Given to the New York Yankees, whose first half adventures have been something akin to a television soap opera.

Will Billy and Reggie kiss and make up? Does George really write out the lineup? Is Thurman peeved or pleased? Can Catfish come out of his coma? Stay tuned, fans.

The Bargain Basement Free Agent Award—To Cleveland outfielder Paul Dade, one of the cheapies in last winter's auction who has paid large dividends with a .326 batting average that has kept him among the American League's top ten hitters.

The award consists of a wallet, filled with Wayne Garland's withholding tax payment.

The Consistency Award—Given to the Milwaukee Brewers. Reconstructed during the off-season through a pair of major trades with Kansas City and Boston and the signing of free agent third baseman Sal Bando, the Brewers reached the All-Star break with a 41-49 record.

Their record at the same time last year? Why, 41-49, of course.

The Endurance Certificate—To the fans of Toronto and Seattle, accepting their expansion teams' last place status as the price for a place in major league baseball.

The Samson Hair Award—Presented to relief pitcher Al Hrabosky of the St. Louis Cardinals, who was required to shave off his Fu Manchu mustache because of Manager Vern Rapp's clean cut rules. Hrabosky apparently cut off his effectiveness as well.

With his mustache, he had won 29 games and saved 44 others in the last three years. After shaving this season he is 2-4 with just six saves and a 4.58 earned run average in 37 games.

See what a sunburned lip can do to a pitcher's performance? Accepting the award will be Telly Savalas.

The Weather-vane Trophy—To Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, who wore a simple suit during last October's frigid World Series and had the same outfit on for the All-Star Game, played in the midst of New York's longest heat wave in 11 years.

Pirates get tourney win

Stromsburg — Six costly Osceola errors helped the Lincoln Pirates recover from a 4-0 deficit and post a 10-7 win in the elimination bracket of the State Semipro Baseball Tournament here Thursday night.

The win moved the Pirates into a 4 p.m. Saturday matchup with Lincoln First Savings. The winner of that game will meet North Bend at 6 p.m. and the Beatrice Bruins will take on Grand Island Pabst, which defeated Sarpy County FOP 6-4 in Thursday's nightcap, at 8 p.m.

Bob Cerv and Gary Schmidt had two hits each and Pat Weixelman held Osceola in check with three hits over the last six innings for the Pirates.

A bases-loaded triple by Ron Gradoville helped 1975 champ

Grand Island Pabst eliminate defending champ Sarpy County FOP in Thursday's nightcap.

Pirates 10, Osceola 7
Osceola 202 030 000—7 11 6
Pirates 000 352 000—10 7 2
Kula Jackson (6) Johnson (9) and Winkelman Nelson Weixelman (3) and Hart WP—Weixelman

GI Pabst 6, Sarpy County 4
Sarpy County FOP 001 001 002—4 6 1
GI Pabst 001 004 100—6 12 1

Hrabosky gets moustache back

St. Louis (UPI) — August A. Busch Jr., owner of the St. Louis Cardinals, Thursday night lifted the club's rule against facial hair but told relief pitcher Al Hrabosky his moustache had better improve his game.

"Work your butt off for a pennant and quit complaining," Busch said.

Trevino leads Canadian Open

Oakville, Ont. (UPI) — Lee Trevino fired a 5-under-par 67 to take a one stroke lead Thursday after the first round of the $225,000 Canadian Open.

Trevino logged four birdies and three bogeys on the front and four birdies on the back on the 7,129 Glen Abbey course to lead a jam of nine players tied for second spot at 68.

Jack Nicklaus, George Archer, Bruce Lietzke, Tom Purtzer, Mike Morley, Tom Kite, George Cadle and four rookies Jeff Mitchell and Jimmy Wittenberg all carded four under rounds for the second place tie.

Wittenberg, who at one point had led on the course at five under before slipping to two under, holed an eight iron for an eagle on the 18th to finish four under par Archer, Lietzke, Morley and Purtzer also chalked up eagles on the par 5 18th.

Two shots back at 69 were Frank Conner, Mike Reid, Gary Koch and two-time Canadian Open champ Tom Weiskopf seven golfers recorded 70s, including Al Geiberger and George Knudson defending champion Jerry Pate was at 71 with six others.

After starting off with birdies on the first two holes, Trevino cooled off to finish the front in 34, one under par, but logged four birdies on the back touring the side in a four-under 33.

"I really can't remember putting as well as I did today," said Trevino, who had 11 one-putts and a total of 26. "If you cut it down I had a real solid 72 but the putter made it 67."

"I have gone to the old putting style," related the 38-year-old Trevino, "putting the putter in front of the ball and getting the line. Once I take the putter back I visualize my hands staying in front of the ball that long."

Although players are allowed to be transported by vehicle in two places on the course, Trevino said he walked the distance. "Once I start a round I don't like to sit down, if I sit down I get stiff." Trevino has been plagued by back problems after injuring it last year, and has only $26,235 in tour winnings so far this season.

Nicklaus, who was commissioned four years ago to design the course, now permanent home for the tournament, said "I'm obviously pleased with the round I didn't hit the ball particularly well but I managed my game."

He recorded five birdies and one bogey. "I thought it played fine," Nicklaus said of the course but thought easy pin placements and soft greens tended to lower scores. "I don't think you'll see so many low scores after today."

Princess stakes win to Rice's Work Sheet

By Mark Gordon
Staff Sports Writer

Omaha — The Princess Stakes was the same as last year except for one important difference — the winning horse.

A year ago, John Lively was the winning rider, Louis Brandt was the winning trainer and Bill Rice of the Dazoc Stables was the winning owner. The winning horse a year ago was Roger's Choice.

"I don't believe she's as nice as Roger's Choice," Rice said after his Work Sheet rallied for a head victory here Thursday in Ak-Sar-Ben's $21,500 Princess Stakes. "She's quite nice, however."

Roger's Choice was one of the standouts at last year's Omaha meet. She was found dead in her stall in Arkadelphia, Ark., just a few weeks ago and the loss left the entire Rice-Brandt-Lively clan shocked.

But Work Sheet has come on to become the top 3-year-old filly in the Dazoc operation. She proved her value with a big stretch move as she topped seven of the grounds' best 3-year-old fillies.

Louis told me we were buying quite a filly," Rice said of the $35,000 investment he paid Boyd Finnell at this spring's Oaklawn Park in Hot Springs, Ark.

"She's going to Chicago now," Rice said. "She comes from behind and she likes the off track."

Brandt was also pleased the early-morning rains left the Ak-Sar-Ben track in a muddy condition.

She runs better on an off-track. She's a superior off-track horse," he said.

Lively, meanwhile, said he had a live horse when the pack straightened out for the stretch run.

"I had to come wide but she was moving well. She had a lot of run left," he said. That run just prevailed over Hess Leaan, at all Special Warmth, who was making her second start of the Omaha season.

Special Warmth led by one length entering the stretch, but wasn't good enough at the end.

In running a 1:12 for the 6 furlongs, Work Sheet earned $11,852.50. That boosted her 1977 earnings to $37,537 on four victories, three seconds and one third in nine outings.

She returned $16.40, $5.60 and $4.00 Special Warmth ridden by Sam Maple, placed for $4.00 and $3.60 while Bud Ogden's Mad Maude, ridden by Ken James, and 1½ lengths behind Special Warmth, showed for $6.00.

The crowd of 15,370 wagered an all-time Thursday handle of $1,512,472.

Just Friday and Saturday's programs remain in this year's 60-day Ak-Sar-Ben racing season.

Pirates pummel Reds, 6-2

Associated Press

Jerry Reuss pitched a six-hitter and Al Oliver drove in a pair of runs to lead the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 6-2 victory over the Cincinnati Reds Thursday night.

Oliver gave the Pirates a 1-0 lead when he led off the Pirate fourth with his 11th homer, a drive over the centerfield wall off losing pitcher Fred Norman, 9-6. Oliver's sacrifice fly capped a three-run Pirate rally in the fifth inning.

After a 31-minute rain delay, the Pirates scored two more runs in the sixth off Cincinnati's Mario Soto, a 21-year-old rookie making his first major league appearance. The two-run Pittsburgh sixth included Frank Taveras' second triple of the game and the second double of the night by Pirate centerfielder Omar Moreno.

Reuss 5-10 with his 100th career victory, was aided by three double plays. He allowed three extra base hits — a double by Ken Griffey in the fourth and a homer by Pete Rose and run scoring double by Dave Concepcion in the ninth.

In other National League action, Bill Buckner's run-scoring pinch single in the bottom of the 12th lifted the Chicago Cubs to a 4-3 victory over the Atlanta Braves.

Keith Hernandez socked a home run and Garry Templeton tripled and scored two runs, leading the St. Louis Cardinals to a 4-0 triumph over the Houston Astros behind Bob Forsch's three-hit pitching.

In the American League, Butch Hobson slammed a three-run homer for his second hit of a nine run seventh inning as Boston battered Cleveland 11-4 in the opener of a day-night double-header. Home runs by Andre Thornton, John Lowenstein and Bruce Bochte powered the Indians to an 8-2 victory in the second game.

Catfish Hunter pitched his first shutout of season, limiting Milwaukee to five hits, and Craig Nettles hit a three-run homer, leading the New York Yankees to a 7-0 victory over the Brewers in the first game of a two-night doubleheader. The Brewers won the second game 5-4 in 10 innings on Dick Davis' RBI singled in the 10th.

Al Cowens drove in five runs Thursday night to reach a new personal career high of 63 in leading the torrid Kansas City Royals to their seventh straight victory, an 8-1 triumph over the Detroit Tigers.

Cowens, whose previous best for RBI in a season was 59 last year, cracked his 15th home run of the season after Hal McRae doubled home Frank White in the third inning. Cowens' next home run will give him twice as many as he accumulated in his first three major league seasons combined.

Paul Splittorff raised his record to 8-5 with a four-hitter.

Lyman Bostock and Larry Hise combined to drive in three first inning runs and Dave Goltz blanked California over the final eight innings to give the Minnesota Twins a 3-2 victory over Nolan Ryan and the angels.

Lee Trevino chomps on a tee as he hits a shot during the Canadian Open. Trevino grabbed a one stroke lead, with a 67.

Atkinson case given to jury

San Francisco (AP) — There is no doubt Pittsburgh Steelers Coach Chuck Noll was trying to damage George Atkinson when he linked him to a "criminal element" in professional football, a federal court jury was told Thursday.

"Mr. Noll was nobody's dummy," attorney Willie Brown said in final arguments at Atkinson's $2 million slander suit. "He knew what he was saying."

There is no question he had in mind doing serious damage to Mr. Atkinson's reputation. He showed absolute reckless disregard as to what might happen to Mr. Atkinson in his career."

Steelers attorney James MacInnis, however, said Noll's explanation of what he meant by "criminal element" — those who wantonly break the rules — shows that his words were "applied and correctly used."

U.S. District Judge Sam Conti said Thursday he would send the nine-day-old case to the two-man, four-woman civil jury Friday.

Women's Open lead to Stacy

Chaska, Minn. (UPI) — Hollis Stacy, a jovial 23-year-old veteran, fired a 2-under-par 70 Thursday to take the first round lead in the U.S. Women's Open Golf Championship over the tough 6,313-yard Hazeltine course.

Stacy, of Savannah, Ga., playing in her eighth Open, shot even-par 36 on the first nine and then got two under with 12 and 20-foot birdie putts on the 11th and 13th to finish with a 36-34-70.

"It's nice to be the first day leader," Stacy grinned in the clubhouse, "but I know I'll be playing my butt off the next three days."

Stacy had a two-stroke lead over Jane Blalock, Amy Alcott, Jan Stephenson and Joyce Kazmierski, who shot even-par 72, in the run for the $11,000 first prize.

Kazmierski, a 10-year pro, was two under par with a chance of tying for the lead until the 16th hole where she shot back and forth over the green for a double bogey.

Alcott said she had a "very consistent, solid day of golf, and I hope I didn't use my whole bag of tricks on the first day."

Nancy Lopez, playing in her first tournament as a pro, and Sandra Post, were tied at 73.

Misty Lounge, Falstaff win

Misty Lounge moved back into a second place tie with Dick Flynn Buick with a 7-4 win over VIP Lounge Thursday night in the AAA fast pitch league at Ballard Field.

Rick Waldrop and Don Crouch had three hits each for the winners. Misty took the lead for good with a five-run third inning.

Tom Novak had a triple and single and drove in two runs to lead Falstaff to a 7-5 win over Dean Brothers in the nightcap. Jim Biggs had a home run and triple for Dean Bros.

Rangers Top all-star team

New Orleans (UPI) — Ed Kirkpatrick and Jim Mason each hit two-run homers Thursday night and the Texas Rangers added five unearned runs to take a 9-1 win over the American Association All-Stars.

Kirkpatrick hit his two-run shot in the fifth inning and Mason added his homer in the seventh.

The minor leaguers were plagued by four errors, including one in the third inning that gave Texas a 2-0 lead.

The All Stars got their only run in the bottom of the seventh on a pair of walks and a single by Mike Buskey of Oklahoma City.

Judge upholds RSROA ruling

A federal judge ruled Thursday that amateur roller skating was not a trade, and thus was not subject to restrictions of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act.

U.S. District Judge Warren K. Urbom refused to grant an injunction to an Ohio man who is threatened with being barred from roller skating competition if he competes in an unsanctioned event in Hagerstown, this weekend.

David Herlacher had asked for the injunction against two Lincolnton, George Picard and Carolyn Parde, and the United Skates Amateur

Junior wrestling tourney set

Iowa City, Iowa (UPI) — More than 1,000 wrestlers from 35 states will compete next week in the United States Wrestling Federation's National Junior Tournament at the University of Iowa.

The meet, which runs Wednesday through Saturday at the Iowa fieldhouse, will include Greco-Roman and freestyle wrestling. The junior tournament is open to

NHL group studies merger

New York (AP) — A National Hockey League fact-finding committee investigating the proposed merger with the World Hockey Association is examining questions and problems involved in the agreement, an NHL spokesman said Thursday.

The spokesman termed "premature," reports that the merger agreement had fallen through, adding that the NHL Board of Governors was expected to convene a meeting in the next few weeks to hear a

4-fight card set for TV

New York (UPI) — Top-ranked heavyweight contenders Ken Norton and Jimmy Young will co-star in a four-fight event that will be telecast live by NBC-TV on Sept. 14, from 8-11 p.m. EDT.

Norton will be facing Lorenzo Zanon, ranked 10th by the World Boxing Council, while Jimmy Young will be fighting unranked Jodie Ballard.

In the other two bouts, it will be fourth-ranked Ron Lyle of Denver against undefeated Stan Ward of Sacramento, Calif., and 6th-ranked Larry Holmes against 8th-ranked Howard Smith, the once-beaten heavyweight from Los Angeles.

The site of the fights, all to go 10 rounds, has not been determined.

Yankee owner defends Jackson

New York (UPI) — New York Yankee owner George M. Steinbrenner came to Reggie Jackson's defense Thursday, following accusations that the controversial outfielder had chased and stomped on a 13-year-old boy after Tuesday night's All-Star Game.

Steinbrenner, in the first official statement from the Yankees, stated, "Anyone who would criticize Reggie Jackson for what happened in this incident just does not have the actual facts. Reggie Jackson is one of the most accommodating baseball players in the major leagues when it comes to obliging autograph seekers, particularly kids. He often spends as much as a half hour in the crowd after games signing autographs and talking and you could not ask for anything more from a ballplayer."

"The facts" are that Jackson, who had been booed by the Yankee Stadium crowd during the introductions to the midsummer exhibition game, was giving out autographs for some 15 minutes in a parking lot in a restricted area which is protected by the police. Apparently, a group of youngsters entered the lot and followed those who were tagging after

Jackson trying to get an autograph. Then, says Steinbrenner, several of the young men "started to shout obscenities that were so bad and so vile that you cannot print them."

According to Jackson and others who witnessed the ugly scene, he was able to put up with it until someone made a particularly vile remark about his mother. At that point, he took off after Chris Howe — the teenager who supposedly made the remark, although Howe denies it — and chased him until Howe fell to the ground.

Whether or not Jackson ever touched the youngster depends on who's telling the story. Howe claims that Jackson stomped him on the wrist when he fell to the ground, but Jackson says it isn't so. According to Jackson, George Scott of the Boston Red Sox restrained him and insisted they go home.

Howe has the option of filing a civil suit for harassment. No assault charges can be filed because the boy was not badly hurt.

It has been an extremely trying and unhappy year for Jackson, who has had problems since joining the team. Most recently, he was berated by teammate Sparky Lyle.

"It's one thing that hasn't changed around here...and I hope it never does."

"It's no longer ranching and farming...it's agribusiness. The present economy has forced people to farm bigger acreages and grow better crops. And in the legal business...the law is changing so rapidly, it's hard to keep up with it."

Frank's beer?

"I drink Oly...and I have ever since I can remember drinking beer. I was raised on pure spring water...so I have a fondness for good water. And I do think it's the water that makes it a good beer...in fact, a great beer. And as I understand it, that's something that hasn't changed."

Frank, that's something that hasn't changed since Olympia was first brewed in 1896. Only naturally pure artesian water has ever gone into our beer. It's the way we've brewed the mellow taste of Oly for over four generations...and it's not about to change.

"I hope it never does...I'm convinced it's the water that makes it the beer it is."

A great beer doesn't change. Olympia never will.

Pot 'high' tests almost at hand

(c) Chicago Sun-Times

Chicago — A test is almost at hand that will tell whether someone is dangerously high on marijuana as reliably as the breath test catches drunken drivers, a researcher says.

The scientist from the University of Oklahoma College of Medicine said the test will rely on machinery and chemical agents already developed and in experimental use. He said that data still must be gathered but that if the federal government gives the research a priority, the marijuana test might be available within a year.

The development would be important since a major barrier to enactment of more liberal marijuana laws has been the lack of a way to catch persons driving while heavily under the drug's influence.

Durt M. Dubowski, the Oklahoma City researcher, discussed findings of his team at the convention of the American Assn. for Clinical Chemistry in Chicago.

Dubowski said newly developed chemical tests can detect marijuana residues in urine as long as 48 hours after use of the drug. He said he tested 12 young men who smoked marijuana of various strengths and cigarettes containing no marijuana.

Dubowski said, however, that so far the urine test can tell only how much marijuana is left in the body, not how strong the drug was when originally smoked.

The researchers adapted the urine test so the same chemicals could be used to analyze breath samples — similar to the way police test breath samples, for alcohol traces now, Dubowski said.

The breath test, although still primitive and more complicated than the urine procedure, promises to be more reliable and easier to use.

The problems we have are temporary, Dubowski said. The technology to develop a reliable test for street use exists. All you have to do is get a larger information base so you know what the measurements mean.

This can be done in a year, given the money.

For some time, tests have been available to determine, from blood or urine samples, whether a person had smoked marijuana up to several days before the sample was taken from the body. Such a test was used earlier this year to determine that a motorist in the February collision of two Chicago Transit Authority trains had not smoked marijuana before the crash, which killed 11 persons.

Hitchhiking an invitation to advances, says judge

Los Angeles (AP) — A woman thumbing a ride in a metropolitan area should be prepared for sexual advances by any man who picks her up, a California appeals court has warned in reversing a rape conviction.

The lone female hitchhiker in the absence of an emergency situation as a practical matter, advises all who pass by that she is willing to enter the vehicle with anyone who stops, and in so doing, advises her less concern for the consequences than the average female.

Justice Lynn D. Compton in a unanimous ruling by the 2nd District Court of Appeals.

Under such circumstances, it would not be unreasonable for a man in the position of defendant here to believe that the female would consent to sexual relations, he added.

Compton said it may not seem well of the prevailing standard of morality, but in the light of all the warnings signs that appear almost daily in the news media, a woman hitchhiking alone in an urban area should at least be aware of the possibility.

The decision Wednesday brought quick and angry reaction from women's activists.

I don't think it's a very responsible statement because it gives license and permission to sexually assaultive men without any kind of limitation, said Connie Russell, executive director of the National Organization for Women and a former rape counselor at University Medical Center.

The act of hitchhiking is an act of contact situation, it is not a passive situation, it is in no way passive, she said. If the pickup man does the bus driver's job, she said, the bus driver has no privilege.

She based the reversal on the state's instruction to the jury about sexual intercourse in a sexual offense.

She said she read up a lot of material about sexual intercourse in a sexual offense, she said. She said she read up a lot of material about sexual intercourse in a sexual offense, she said.

Most of the state receives some rain

Most of Nebraska, except for the northwestern portion, received rain early Thursday with some areas drenched in downpours of more than four inches.

The heaviest amounts reported were in the Ord and Burwell vicinities. Burwell recorded more than four inches and Ord and even four inches.

Other heavier amounts included 2.85 inches at Wahoo, 2.82 at Elgin, 2.62 at Pierce, 2.60 at Orchard, 2.55 at Meadow Grove, 2.54 at Decatur, 2.42 at Hadar, 2.40 at Omaha, 2.30 at Norfolk, 2.12 at Wakefield, and 2.11 at Winside.

Lincoln was on the short end of the rainfall with 2.7 of an inch. This brought the July total for the city to 3.23 inches, compared to a normal of 2.21, but left the 1977 total to date at 15.50 or 1.74 below average.

With the rains came cooler weather Thursday for the entire state as highs were generally in the 70s and 80s.

Beatrice's 84 degrees was the state's warmest for the day with the low a cool 52 at Alliance.

A slow moving cold front was responsible for the rains in eastern Nebraska Thursday morning, the National Weather Service said.

Latest rainfall received throughout Nebraska, as reported by the National Weather Service, included:

'Fatigue' may cause affair

London (UPI) — Husbands and wives who cheat on their spouses may simply be responding to 'nervous fatigue' for which the only cure is a new sex partner, two British experts say.

Afflicted persons may look outside marriage to recapture what has been lost through repetition, said Maurice North, a sociologist, and Frederick Toates, a psychologist, in an article in New Society Magazine.

Under the headline 'Is Adultery Biological?' they wrote:

'It is known that when the nervous system gets the same stimulation repeatedly and predictably over a long period it is not so aroused by it as when it was new.

'We believe the sex drive and its need for novelty is part of man's animal inheritance and may be attributable to identifiable nervous system properties. Why some go in for promiscuity more than others may be due to the nervous system they were born with.'

Skateboarder to give up — only for while

Harrisburg, Pa. (AP) — With a cast on his arm and 10 stitches in his head, Pennsylvania's secretary of community affairs, Bill Wilcox, says he plans to give up skateboarding — at least for a while.

I remember flying through the air but I don't remember hitting the ground or anything the 58 year old Wilcox said.

Wilcox apparently hit a pebble while practicing on his skateboard outside his house in Cumberland County causing the spill.

LTS reports ridership increased 2% in June

The Lincoln Transportation System may be reversing a drop in ridership, the LTS board was told Thursday.

Figures for June showed that the system had 2% more riders this month than for the same month last year. For the year, however, the system is still 3% below last year's level.

Assistant system manager Bill Franklin told the board that the reason for this month's increase may be because people are beginning to accept the downtown loop, installed about a year ago.

On another matter the LTS board wondered whether it will have any role when the LTS system becomes part of the newly-created City Transportation Department.

Board member John Alden said that he does not want to become part of a 'tri-headed monster' and that he wants the board's responsibility clearly defined.

Cases reported of penicillin- resistant VD

Omaha (AP) — The Omaha-Douglas County Health Dept. says the county has had two reported cases of a type of gonorrhea that cannot be treated with penicillin, the primary drug used against the disease.

Dr. Warren Jacobson, department director, said the cases were reported in June. Dr. Paul Stoesz, director of the Nebraska Health Dept.'s disease control division, said the Douglas County cases are the only ones known in Nebraska.

Public health officials nationally have expressed concern about the penicillin-resistant gonorrhea strain.

Dr. Jacobson said it can be treated with another drug, spectinomycin. He added "if it becomes resistant to that, however, we are stuck."

Police await autopsy of Maryland man

Omaha (AP) — Police were awaiting the results of an autopsy Thursday to determine the cause of death of Gilbert D. Preston, 70, Beltsville, Md.

Police said he was found dead at the wheel of his car after he apparently tried to get the vehicle into position to hook onto a trailer. Witnesses said the vehicle was going less than 15 m.p.h.

Police said it was believed he died of a heart attack. If the autopsy substantiates that theory, the death will not be counted as a traffic fatality.

Stocks finish mixed

New York (AP) — The stock market gradually recovered from some early selling Thursday to finish mixed on another active session.

The early setback came after monthly consumer price figures from the government failed to show the improvement some Wall Streeters had expected.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks off about 2 points at noon closed with a 1.30 advance at 921.78 for its fifth straight gain. Over that span the average has risen 18.79 points.

Dow Ind. +1.30

But losers held a 4-3 edge on gainers in the daily tally on the New York Stock Exchange, and the exchange's composite index dipped .09 to 55.64.

Before the market opened, the government reported that the consumer price index climbed .66 per cent in June, maintaining the 7.2 per cent annual rate of the previous month.

Recent declines in commodity prices and the wholesale price index had raised hopes on Wall Street for a better showing than that.

By early afternoon, however, the Dow began a slow comeback that pushed it to the plus side about an hour before the close.

The statistics showed a decline in the basic measure of the money supply, which theoretically reduces the chances that the Fed will tighten credit.

Potpourri — an old fashioned word meaning a little bit of everything — and a little bit of everything is what you can sell! Any merchandise (priced under $100), from an old tennis racket to an electric stove, can be advertised in Potpourri for 3 days for just $3 (fifteen word limit). You may cancel your ad when merchandise is sold . . . no refunds will be made, however. For further details, see the coupon elsewhere in the Want Ad section!
